Armed Forces Reserve Bill Clears Senate, 80-1

2,900,000-Man Force Is Goal

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The Senate today passed an armed forces reserve bill aimed at building up a combat-ready reserve of 2,900,000 men by 1960. Active reserves, including the National Guard, now number about 800,000.

The roll call vote was 80-1, with only Sen. Langer (R-ND) voting no.

Sens. Jenner (R-Ind) and Schoeppel (R-Kan) answered "present" and Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said he was paired against the bill with Sen. George (D-Ga) who favored passage.

The Senate action virtually assures that President Eisenhower will get, at least in limited form, legislation he had tabbed near the top of his "must" list.

Bill Returns To House

The House already has passed the bill but it will return there because of changes made by the Senate.

However, both Senate and House voted for a key provision of the Eisenhower program. This would permit youngsters aged 17-20 to volunteer for six months of active training to be followed by 7½ years of service in an active reserve unit. Such volunteers would be exempt from the regular draft.

A Senate-House conference committee is expected to try to adjust differences in the programs approved by the two bodies.

Chief of these is the question of compelling men who have completed active military service as draftees or volunteers to do additional training with reserve units.

The House approved compulsion for all servicemen drafted or enlisted since the Korean armistice, July 27, 1953.

Senate OKs Bonus Offer

In the Senate, it was argued that this would require double service liability by veterans while thousands of draft - age men escaped all military duty.

The Senate voted instead that 30 days after the bill becomes law, any man entering the service through the draft or enlistment could be forced to take active reserve training on completion of active duty.

And until July 1, 1957, the Senate agreed to offer a bonus of more than $200 to any former serviceman who volunteers for three years of active reserve training with combat - type units of the Army and Marine Corps.

Tax Plan To Pay For Roads Gets Tentative Okay

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The House Public Works Committee today tentatively approved federal tax increases on gasoline and other highway-user items to raise about $11,800,000,000 over the next 14 years for a vast road - building program.

The committee scaled down by over a billion dollars the increases proposed by a subcommittee.

The tax plan has been advanced chiefly by Democrats as a substitute for President Eisenhower's proposal to pay for the new roads through issuing bonds.

Actions Subject To Change

The committee didn't complete action on the bill today and will take it up again tomorrow. Thus its actions today still could be changed by more amendments awaiting a decision.

The road program, the biggest in history, calls for 37 billion dollars in federal funds and about 10 billions in state funds. Of this, 24 billion in federal funds and 2½ billions in state funds.

It also contemplates a 25-million-dollar increase each year in the present program of about 700 millions in federal funds for primary, secondary and urban roads. These funds are matched 50-50 by states.

Pay-As-You-Build Basis

The tax plan is designed to put the big construction effort on a pay-as-you-build basis. As it stands now, the new taxes plus present highway - user taxes would fall about 5½ billion dollars short of raising the entire 37 billions dollars in planned federal spending.

The committee tentatively approved these tax increases, which would take effect shortly after the bill is enacted:

Gasoline, from 2 to 3 cents a gallon; Diesel fuel, from 2 to 5 cents a gallon; trucks and buses, from 8 per cent to 10 per cent; heavy tires, from 5 to 15 cents a pound; heavy tubes, from 9 to 15 cents a pound; camelback, used in retreads, from no tax now to 15 cents a pound.

SOLO BRIDEGROOM — Sir Jacob Epistein, controversial sculptor, has a good reason for not looking like a happy honeymooner — he's traveling alone. The 76-year-old artist, arriving in New York aboard the liner Liberte, said: "It's no one's business but my own" when asked about his marrige to his 50 - year - old secretary, Mrs. Kathleen Garman. His bride of two weeks was not with the British sculptor, who is en route to Philadelphia. (AP Wirephoto)

Senate Hopes Satellites Will Gain Freedom

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The Senate proclaimed its hope for the freeing of Soviet satellite nations today and then with several members expressing misgivings, took a stand against colonialism.

The resolution putting the Senate on record as hoping that the captives of "alien despotism" will regain the right of self-government was adopted 89-0 on the eve of President Eisenhower's departure for the Geneva Big Four summit talks.

It contained no specific mention of communism, Soviet Russia, or the Geneva talks, but Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California said there is "only one tyrannical power loose in the world today, and that is the Soviet Union."

The second resolution, adopted 88-0 with Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) voting "present," was a policy horse of another color.

It stemmed from the recent Africa-Asia conference in Bandung and Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said it could easily be interpreted abroad as a U. S. policy of "stirring up revolt" in friendly countries.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) said the Senate should notify the world that in voting for the resolution "none of us are voting for revolutions."

The resolution, which originated in the House, would put Congress on record as favoring a U. S. foreign policy that would "support other peoples in their efforts to achieve self-determination or independence under circumstances which will enable them to assume and maintain an equal station among the free nations of the world."

Rose Is Nominated For Treasury Post

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — President Eisenhower today nominated H. Chapman Rose, 48, Cleveland lawyer, to be an undersecretary of the treasury.

Rose, who has been an assistant secretary since the Eisenhower administration took office in 1953, would succeed Marion Folsom in the higher post.

Four Die In Jet Bomber Crash

SHREVEPORT, La., July 14 (AP)—Four airmen were killed near here early today when their B47 Stratojet bomber, loaded with fuel, crashed four minutes after takeoff in rainy weather.

Barksdale Air Force Base identified the dead as Capt. John D. Brashear Jr., 35, of Newport, Ark., the craft commander; Capt. Loaton R. Castle Jr., 32, San Angelo, Tex., pilot; Capt. Clifton J. Dejung, 33, Patzau, Wis., observer, and Airman 1.C. James M. Waller, 25, of Dodson, La., crew chief.

The six-engine plane dug a crater 25 feet wide, 15 feet deep, where part of the wreckage burned before a downpour snuffed the blaze. The remainder of the craft skittered across a cornfield, disintegrating part by part. Two of the bodies were found 600 feet from the crater; the other two, 300 feet away. Several parts of the wreckage caught fire.

11 Missing, 30 Found After Boat Sinking

VERACRUZ, Mexico, July 14 (AP)—Fishing boats and Coast Guard vessels searched the sea and along the shores near Veracruz today for 11 persons missing after the sinking of a small passenger boat.

Thirty passengers and crewmen aboard the 145-ton La Flecha (The Arrow) have been found safe in a rescue ship, or on beaches near Alvarado, 40 miles south of Veracruz. Five bodies have been recovered from the sea—two children, two men and a woman.

Blind Army Vet Returns $10,368

BATAVIA, N. Y., July 14 (AP)—A sightless Army veteran, who sells newspapers on Main street here, today gave back the $10,368 that residents of the city gave him almost 10 years ago. And he added interest.

Residents raised the fund to set Charles R. Bishop up in business after a sniper's bullet in the Pacific theater had blinded him.

But Bishop, now 31, never used the money. He invested it. Today, he gave this western New York city a check for $12,000 to be used for a community swimming pool.

Ark. Man Heads Shrine

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—A Little Rock, Ark., man was elevated to Shrinedom's highest office today amid pomp and splendor like that of King Solomon's court.

In an hour-long pageant Walter C. Guy, printing company executive, was installed as imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He succeeds Frank S. Land, a Kansas City, Mo., banker.

Lightning Kills One, Fells 100 At Ascot Race Track

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—Lightning bolts killed a horse-racing fan at fashionable Ascot today and knocked out more than 100 others while they were studying their bets for the next race.

Dense fogs caused two ship collisions as the death toll from a midsummer week-long heat wave in Britain and Western Europe approached the 100 mark.

Except for the palace garden party, Britain's young Queen Elizabeth would have been at Ascot at the time the storm broke over the race course. One bolt struck the main stand near the royal box.

Those felled by the lighting were standing near a wire fence.

Most of those knocked out quickly recovered. Ambulances took 23 persons to Windsor Hospital suffering from burns and shock. Three were described as seriously injured.

Ascot is a gathering place for British aristocracy.

Fog rolled out over the North Sea, forcing ships to proceed at "dead slow" speeds.

The 6,103-ton American-owned steamer Innes collided with the 5,406-ton Norwegian Black Heron off the Dutch North Sea coast but suffered only slight damage.

An abandoned Liberian steamer, the 7,187-ton Cygnet, drifted dangerously in the fogbound English Channel after colliding with the 7,124-ton Capt. Lukis, a Panamanian vessel. The British ship Baltic Clipper picked up the Cygnet's crew of 27 in two lifeboats, but the Cygnet was reported "afloat and dangerously tipping."

Dulles Works On Proposals For Meeting

German Unification Reduction Of Arms Due To Head Topics

PARIS, July 14 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived today and went to work on proposals the Americans, British and French will put to the Russians when they meet "at the summit" in Geneva next week.

A U. S. spokesman refused to answer questions about what the proposals contain. It seemed certain French agreement must have meant inclusion of Premier Edgar Faure's plan for the big powers to cut slices from their defense budgets and pool these savings in a fund to raise living standards in poor countries.

Germany, Arms Topics Seen

Also expected to be among the Western proposals were plans for:

1. Unifying West Germany and Communist East Germany, under carefully supervised free elections.

2. Cutting atomic and other arms under a system of international inspection.

A group of American, British and French experts finished their list of topics and detailed proposals only this morning. The U. S. spokesman said Dulles spent three hours today going over the work with Jacob Beam, chief of the U. S. experts, and the men under him.

Dulles Calls On Pinay

Dulles' plane put down at Orly Airfield on a steamy hot Bastille Day, the French national holiday, shortly after the big parade down the Champs - Elysees. After remarking to a diplomat that Paris had "real Fourth of July weather for the 14th," he read to reporters a statement saying:

"This is a day when the heart of the whole world beats with that of France and when liberty, equality and fraternity take on a new meaning."

Dulles paid a quick call to French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. Afterward Pinay told reporters he thought the Geneva conference may start a long series of negotiations, and lay a solid basis for peace.

Pileup Of Train Kills Engineer

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 14 (AP)—Pounding around "the severest" curve in the darkness, the locomotive and seven lead cars of the New Haven Railroad's Federal Express were derailed here today, killing the engineer and injuring 24 other persons.

The locomotive plunged over an embankment and landed in freight yards 35 feet below with a tremendous crash which woke thousands of residents. The forward coaches jack-knifed and went off the trestle down the bank. A switching engine and two cars on a siding were hit.

Dead in the wreckage of his cab was Arthur Orteneau, about 60, of New Haven, engineer of the 17-car Washington to Boston express which was carrying 175 passengers. Orteneau's body was trapped in the wreckage of the locomotive for hours before it could be released.

Several other passengers could be removed only after the wreckage had been pried apart by firemen and other rescue workers.

Third Of Reds' Air Power In Far East

TOKYO, Friday, July 15 (AP)—U. S. Far East Air Forces Command estimates that almost one-third of the Communist world's air power has been moved into Asia.

It also has taken note of a gradual shift southward from Manchuria and North Korea in Communist air power in the past year.

"Such a shift would support any program to 'liberate' Formosa," commented Col. James T. Stewart, FEAF assistant deputy for operations, at a military briefing for visiting U. S. newsmen.

Stewart said Communist air power, with its weapons of mass destruction, remains the most serious immediate threat to free world security even though Communist nations have "a huge combined ground army and a significant number of long - range submarines."

Senators Blame Army, Red Tape In Peress Case

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Senators who investigated the question of "Who promoted Peress?" reported today the case was compounded by 48 errors, including poor judgment and improper coordination.

Five Army generals, among others, were named by the Senate Investigations subcommittee as guilty of errors in the case of the promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, after he had refused to say whether he was a Communist.

The subcommittee's report, signed by six of its seven members, raised no question of subversion in the handling of the Peress case by the military.

Bender Refuses To Sign

The seventh subcommittee member, Sen. Bender (R-Ohio), refused to sign. He said the report should have stated specifically that there was no evidence to support the suggestion, raised by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), that some "Communist mastermind" in the Pentagon was involved.

Peress was a Brooklyn dentist who had entered the Army Jan. 1, 1953, with the rank of captain. He was promoted to major Nov. 3, 1953, although he had refused to state on Army forms whether he was a Communist.

McCarthy wrote the Army on Feb. 1, 1954 it ought to hold up the honorable discharge; the senator had been demanding a court-martial for Peress instead.

Adams "Disrespectful"

However, the day after McCarthy sent his letter, Peress was honorably discharged, leaving with the rank of major. The subcommittee majority charged today that Army counselor John G. Adams, since resigned, "showed disrespect for the subcommittee when he chose to disregard" McCarthy's letter.

McCarthy was among the six who signed today's report.

It said the case demonstrated "individual errors of judgement, lack of proper coordination, ineffective administration procedures, inconsistent application of investigative regulations, and excessive delays."

It said Secretary of the Army Stevens, who has submitted his resignation — or perhaps some among his Pentagon superiors—did a disservice to the country in, as the subcommittee put it, delaying facts about the case for almost a year.

Kidnap-Rape Story Hoax, Man Contends

JOPLIN, Mo., July 14 (AP) — A near-illiterate farm hand reversed himself after 23 hours today and told police his story of kidnaping and raping 2-year-old Donna Sue Davis of Sioux City, Iowa, was a hoax.

Audrey Brandt, 42, of La Porte City, Iowa, told acting detective Capt. John Showers that he made up the story after hearing an account of the rape slaying over an automobile radio while riding in the vicinity of Sioux City.

Police continued to hold him on a vagrancy charge.

Ike Leaves For Geneva Tonight After Talk On TV

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — President Eisenhower made final arrangements today to tell the American people of his hopes for the Geneva Big Four conference, and then to take off for the historic meeting.

The President will speak tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m., EDT., from the White House. All four TV networks plan to carry the 15-minute talk at the time of delivery, and so will ABC and CBS radio. MBS and NBC will broadcast the speech at later hours. The speech will be extemporaneous.

At 9:30 p.m., the President will take off in the Columbine III for the conference, which opens Monday.

FTC Opposes Two Mergers

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced today it was moving to block mergers in two fields:

1. The purchase by Farm Journal, Inc. of Better Farming, formerly known as the Country Gentleman, which the FTC described as Farm Journal's leading rival in the agricultural magazine field;

2. The alleged acquisition by Union Bag & Paper Corp. of New York City of control of Hankins Container Co. of Cleveland. The FTC described these as two of the nation's oldest paper product manufacturers and said agreements made between the two firms in June and July of 1954 violated the laws against interlocking directorships and unfair competition.

The agency said a hearing in the Farm Journal case will be held in Philadelphia Sept. 20, and a hearing in the paper products case was set for Oct. 18 in New York City. Both hearings will be conducted by FTC examiners.

Bomb Kills Seven

PARIS, July 14 (AP)—A powerful bomb burst in front of a crowded Casablanca cafe tonight, killing seven persons and injuring 25, dispatches from Morocco reported.

The French News Agency said all the victims were Europeans.

Was Red In '30s, New York Times Reporter Says

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—New York Times reporter Ira Henry Freeman said today he was a Communist party member for a year back in the 1930s. He said he quit because he found Communist meetings "inept and futile...dull and fruitless."

Freeman thus became the second Times reporter to tell the Senate Internal Security subcommittee he was a Red in the 1930s. The other, Charles Grutzner, also said he left the party when he became disillusioned about the Communists.

Grutzner's name popped up again today with the appearance of Ansel Talbert, military and aviation editor of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Reported Sabres In Korea

Talbert said that while he and Grutzner were war correspondents in Korea in 1950, Grutzner filed a story which Gen. George C. Stratemeyer, then Far East commander, described as "one of the most serious security breaches of the war."

This story reported the first use of F86 Sabre Jet fighters against the Reds in Korea and, Grutzner said, officers in the field refused to clear it for publication. Grutzner said he filed it with a notation to the Times to get Pentagon clearance before using it; the Times has reported it got the clearance.

UP Story Filed Same Day

Chairman Eastland (D - Miss) said today he had received a telegram from Turner Catledge, managing editor of the Times, on the subject and ordered it placed in the record.

The Catledge message contained a copy of a memorandum dated July 8 from Glen Stackhouse, a United Press correspondent of Korean days, in reply to a telephone query from Grutzner.

Stackhouse said that the same day Grutzner filed his story to New York, he filed his own account of the F86 story to his own office in Tokyo, by telephone.

Russians Could Wipe Out Free World, Cannon Says

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee declared today Russia has reached military superiority "over the combined powers of all the free world."

He added, in a rafter-ringing House speech, that Russia could wipe out "every modern country in the free world" within 30 to 60 days.

His speech wound up with a defense of the Tennessee Valley Authority and its contributions to national defense. Cannon attacked those who, he said, "in this moment of dire peril would destroy TVA so they can have more dividends."

The theory of retaliation on which this nation's defense has been based is no longer valid, Cannon said, because of the destruction Russia could impose with the first blow of an atomic war.

Cannon has access to much secret data as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, but he did not give any source for his sweeping estimates of Russian military power.

But he did say, without elaboration:

"We were told only last week" that Russia has "more in numbers and superiority in every respect" in planes to carry atomic bombs.

Administration officials have contended, despite evident Russian air progress, that this nation still remains aerial supremacy.

Cannon said Russia has "more submarines than all the rest of the world" and has "more land forces than the rest of the free world can hope to match."

Khrushchev, Zhukov To Go With Bulganin

Molotov, Gromyko Complete Russian 'Summit' Delegation

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP)—Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Marshal Georgi K Zhukov, defense minister, are going to the Geneva conference with Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin. The Premier said tonight this means the Soviet delegation "is the very summit."

Khrushchev, Zhukov, Bulganin, Foreign Minister V. M Molotov and Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will make up the five-man Soviet delegation, the Kremlin announced.

The official announcement called this a "government delegation." Khrushchev technically is not a member of the government, though he is a member of Parliament. His main title is that of secretary of the Soviet Communist party. But he has been occupying an increasingly dominant role in Soviet affairs. The recent prominence of Marshal Zhukov has indicated a strong rise in the influence of the Soviet armed forces.

Help French Celebrate

Tonight Khrushchev and Bulganin headed a group of leaders helping celebrate Bastille Day at the French Embassy. Reporters buttonholed both of them to inquire about the announcement made a few hours before.

"The composition of our delegation is the very summit," Bulganin said. "For instance, how could we discuss disarmament at Geneva unless Defense Minister Zhukov came along?"

Walter Walmsley, U. S. charge d'affairs, commented that army men might be more interested in arms than in disarmament, and the goateed Bulganin retorted:

"I do not think so. I have said before and I say again that nobody understands the terrors and hardships of war better than we soldiers. We know what war is."

Bulganin was referring to himself and Zhukov. Actually, Bulganin is a "political" marshal, having received his rank from Stalin in recognition of wartime work far from the battlefronts.

Khrushchev Amiably Chatty

Khrushchev, just as amiably chatty as he was at the July 4 party of the American Embassy, joined in toasts to French-Soviet friendship and success at Geneva. He said the delegation would leave for Geneva Saturday.

Bulganin promised a statement tomorrow on the Geneva conference. Asked if Zhukov and his wartime colleague, President Eisenhower, would take up their personal friendship at Geneva, Bulganin said:

"The relations between President Eisenhower and Marshal Zhukov are personal relations and they will not particularly concern the Soviet government delegation."

Zhukov and President Eisenhower have been in personal correspondence in the past year.

22 Die When Boat Carrying Mau Maus To Island Jail Sinks

NAIROBI, Kenya, July 14 (AP)—A launch carrying Mau Mau terrorists and their guards to an escape-proof island jail capsized on Lake Victoria today. Of 50 persons aboard, 22 perished—some eaten by crocodiles.

Among the victims was Steve C. Martin, 57, an Australian, who is the prison commandant. The launch went down only 50 yards from shore in shallow water but survivors said Martin failed to make it.

The shores of Lake Victoria, second largest fresh water lake in the world, are alive with big game—including hippos and crocodiles.

The launch was headed for Mageta Island, where 1,000 of the toughest and most fanatical of the Mau Mau terrorists are held. Known as Kenya's "Devil's Island," the only escape route is across a five mile stretch of crocodile-infested water separating the island from the mainland.

Balconies Fall, 15 Die

PARIS, July 14 (AP)—Fifteen persons were killed and three injured tonight in Algiers by the collapse of two balconies of an apartment building, the French Press Agency said.

Its dispatch from the French North African city said the group, living on the fifth and sixth floors, had gathered to watch a disturbance in the street below and the balconies collapsed under the weight.

Desegregation Foes Lose Another Battle

Race Separation On Columbia, S. C., Buses Held Illegal

[By The Associated Press]

Southern proponents of segregation lost another battle Thursday as the traditional Dixie practice of separating the white and Negro races came under heavy fire on several fronts.

The U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., threw out segregation on city buses in ruling on a Columbia, S. C., case.

The court said the principle applied by the U. S. Supreme Court decree outlawing public school segregation "should be applied in cases involving transportation."

In Washington, both Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission were asked to end other transportation segregation practices.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People urged the ICC to follow the Supreme Court public school segregation decision and abolish all segregation in interstate transportation.

School Hearing Set

Rep. Diggs (D-Mich), a Negro, at the same time proposed to the House Commerce subcommittee that it ban segregation practices at federal aid airports. Meanwhile, a three-judge federal district court prepared to sit in Columbia, S. C., today for the first hearing in a public school segregation case since the Supreme Court on May 31 passed the problem back to district courts.

The high court last year ruled that separation of students on the basis of race alone is illegal and in the May 31 decree directed district courts to see that segregation is ended as soon as practicable.

In other segregation developments, the Macon, Ga., NAACP local president threatened to burn membership lists to protect any teachers from revocation of their Georgia licenses, and the Atlanta Public Library Board declined to open the main library branch to Negroes.

Negroes are required to sit in the rear of most Southern city transportation vehicles. South Carolina is one of the states having state statutes on that and other segregation practices.

District Court Action Reversed

Sarah Mae Fleming brought suit against the South Carolina Electric and Gas Co., of Columbia, which a district court dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The company operates the transportation system in Columbia.

In reversing that action, the circuit court not only held that the district court had jurisdiction, but declared, "we do not think the separate but equal doctrine . . . can any longer be regarded as a correct statement of law."

It added that from recent Supreme Court decisions "it appears quite clearly" that repudiation of the "separate but equal doctrine" should be applied to "cases involving transportation."

The ICC is hearing arguments on a case brought in 1953 by the NAACP against railroad and bus lines in the South, seeking an end to segregation in waiting rooms and restaurants as well as on trains and buses.

Plane Lands Safely After Wheel Collapse

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The right wheel of an Eastern Airlines passenger plane collapsed and sent the big Constellation skidding several hundred feet at National Airport here early today, but the crew and 55 passengers were not injured.

The plane was bound from Newark, N. J., to Houston, Tex. It circled the field for nearly an hour before landing because a signal light on the control panel indicated something was wrong with the landing gear.

The pilot, Capt. Alexander Schmidt, decided to land when the light gave indications that the gear "seemed to be operative."

As the plane touched the landing strip, the wheel collapsed, putting part of the weight on the right wing.

Explosive Mixture Found Under Bank

BALTIMORE, July 14 (AP)—Firemen today found an explosive mixture of water and gasoline trickling through the underpinnings of the First National Bank.

A cordon of fire trucks was thrown around the 20-story building at Light and Redwood streets. Hose lines were laid into the sub-basement while the gasoline and water was pumped out.

There is a system of drainage pipes under the building to carry off spring water and seepage from the harbor, two blocks away. The sub-basement reaches 45 feet below ground level and four feet below tidewater in the harbor.

Investigators started working on the theory the gasoline had leaked in from storage tanks at a big parking garage which is almost back to back with the bank.

Aluminum Pay Plan

PITTSBURGH, July 14 (AP)—AFL aluminum workers today asked the Aluminum Co. of America to freeze a 2-cent hourly cost of living increase into base pay rates and give 10,000 workers a substantial pay increase.

Stunt Driver Dies After Feat

ROSEBURG, Oregon, July 14 (AP)—A stunt driver flipped his car over three times in a speeding loop-the-loop attraction here last night and died after bringing the car to a halt.

Coroner L. L. Powers said apparently the jar of landing ruptured a blood vessel in the brain of Horace Earl Ivie, 30, Oklahoma City.

It was the second death in Oregon this month in a thrill attraction although the first, that of a July 4 cyclist speeding down a ramp, stemmed from failure to complete the stunt. Ivie, who performed under the name Dario La Costa, collapsed at the end of what appeared to be a successful performance.

Before his midget racer took off down the 40-foot-high ramp, the announcer stirred the expectation of the crowd by reporting nine persons had been killed in the stunt in years past before a steel ramp replaced one of wood.

The ramp curved upward at the bottom of the run, sending the car up into its three end-over-end turns.

Adenauer Urged To Groom His Successor Now

BONN, Germany, July 14 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is coming under increasing pressure to groom his successor now.

Members of his Christian Democratic Party (CDU) and influential newspapers are urging Adenauer to act so the next chancellor can take over as smoothly as Sir Anthony Eden succeeded Sir Winston Churchill in Britain.

During his visit to the United States in June Adenauer said he had "plenty of Edens" although they had yet to "prepare themselves."

Such influential newspapers as the Stuttgarter Zeitung, the Frankfurter Neue Presse and the Aachener Nachrichten have contradicted this claim, saying:

"Everyone knows we have no Eden. Churchill groomed his successor for a decade and a half. Over here, there is nothing of the kind."

Inside the CDU — the nation's dominant political party — many leaders say "the CDU has plenty of good colonels but no general" prepared to succeed Adenauer.

Party leaders feel that a political buildup should start for Adenauer's successor in preparation for the 1957 national election. Adenauer will be 81 in 1957.

Politicans feel Adenauer has a wealth of material among his present lieutenants. Foreign diplomats here agree, saying Adenauer's Cabinet is equal to any in Western Europe today in men of integrity and intelligence.

Appeals Court Rebuffs Guild

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals refused today to interfere, at this state at least, with Atty. Gen. Brownell's move to list the National Lawyers Guild as a subversive organization.

In a unanimous decision, the judges told the Guild that before coming to court it must go through a Justice Department hearing, even though it claims the attorney general has prejudged it.

"We cannot assume in advance of a hearing that a responsible executive official of the government will fail to carry out his manifest duty," the three - judge court said. "Our conclusion on the point is that the plaintiffs must await the event rather than attempt to anticipate it."

The lawyers group appealed after losing two attempts in a lower court to halt the attorney general's proceedings. The subversive list is used primarily in screening government workers and applicants for federal jobs.

The Guild, founded in 1937, at one time had 30 chapters around the country and several thousand members. The appeals court said it has lost many members.

Plucky Suzan Ball Again Fights Ravages Of Cancer

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 (AP)—Plucky Suzan Ball again is fighting the ravages of cancer.

The dark-eyed beauty, who lost a leg because of the disease, is hospitalized at nearby City of Hope Hospital, a center for lung diseases and cancer. An authoritative source close to the actress said she is suffering lung cancer.

The hospital would not confirm this, declaring Miss Ball still is in diagnosis. A spokesman denied rumors she is near death, but declared she has occasionally received oxygen. He said it is expected that diagnostic studies will be completed early next week and meanwhile no sudden turn in her status is expected.

Despite the gravity of her illness, the 22-year-old patient is apparently reacting with the courage that captured the nation's heart during her earlier bout with cancer. Hospital officials reported she was reading newspapers, listening to the radio and watching TV and was bright and cheerful.

Her faith saw her through the painful days when she first battled the disease. A growth appeared on her knee following a bump in a dance rehearsal and a later jolt in an auto crash. The trouble was diagnosed as a form of cancer, but it was believed that treatments arrested the growth.

A fall in her apartment kitchen caused a leg fracture and doctors decided the leg would have to be removed. She was first stricken in the summer of 1953, and the amputation was performed Jan. 13, 1954.

Appeals Court Rejects O'Neal's Immunity Claim

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals rejected today the claim of former Rep. Emmet O'Neal (D-Ky) that he was immune from press criticism for asking "careful consideration" of a prisoner's commutation plea.

O'Neal, a former ambassador to the Philippines as well as a former member of the House, sued Look magazine for $350,000 libel damages. A jury in U. S. District Court in February, 1954, found for the magazine and gave him no damages.

In carrying the case to the Court of Appeals O'Neal pointed out that the grant of a commutation sentence is entrusted solely to the President and is not subject to judicial review.

The court's opinion said he "urged that a charge that a congressman by the influence of his intervention may have induced the President to grant a commutation of sentence is closed to the defense of truth."

It added:

"But we cannot agree the imperviousness of an executive act to judicial review raises it above public criticism and protects those who procured or induced it from disclosure of, and comment upon, their activities.

"If because no one has standing in the courts to attack some action of the executive or of Congress, that action is entirely removed from public scrutiny and press criticism, the end of a free society as we know it would soon be at hand."

The opinion, written by Judge George T. Washington and concurred in by Judges Wilbur K. Miller and John A. Danaher, said O'Neal did not deny asking the Justice Department to "give careful consideration" to a petition for commutation of the sentence which James J. Gavin was serving in federal prison. The commutation of sentence was granted by former President Truman.

White Students Seen Attending Maryland State

CRISFIELD, Md., July 14 (AP)—President John T. Williams told visting legislators today he had no fear of enrollment dropping at Maryland State College because of desegregation.

Williams said he expected white students to attend the hitherto exclusively Negro institution.

"As soon as the whites feel the program is respectable for all people they will come here," he predicted.

Dr. Williams said that, while Maryland State College never was officially considered for Negroes only, that had been the public attitude. He said this was demonstrated a few years ago when a few white students enrolled and quit because of great publicity about attending "a Negro college."

He said he had reason to believe this would change once desegregation was accepted. As an example he cited West Virginia State College at Institute, W. Va. That institution for the first time last year publicized a policy of desegregation and enrollment now is about 50-50 between Negroes and whites.

Dr. Williams further argued to members of the legislative council the need for continuing the University of Maryland branch by maintaining it was "doing something not being done by any other institution in the State."

This was, he said, giving higher education in mechanical arts.

Boy Killed, 5 Hurt In Turnpike Crash

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 14 (AP)—Two autos collided early today on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, killing a 4-year-old Ohio boy and injuring five persons, including four members of the youngster's family.

State Police identified the dead boy as Richard Sincich of Youngstown.

State Police said an auto driven by Wilfred Shima, 36, of Wilkesbarre, bounced across the turnpike's medial strip two miles west of the Beaver Valley interchange and plowed into the other car driven by Milo Sincich, about 30, father of Richard.

House Cuts Money Bill 1.4 Billion

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—In a display of anger growing out of a dispute between committees, the House today cut $1,453,000,000 out of what started as a $1,648,876,128 appropriation bill.

Then it sent the skeletonized measure to the Senate by voice vote.

Knocked from the bill on points of order—technicalities permitting a single objection to kill an appropriation—were all funds for Army, Navy and Air Force public works construction. This accounted for $1,395,879,000 of the cash cuts, with miscellaneous smaller items making up the balance. In addition, the procedure knocked out $483,612,000 which the Army would have been allowed to keep from previous allotments.

The President of the United States and the governor of Massachusetts both possess, as official legal titles, "Excellency," by legislative act.

'New Weapons' Bolster Defense, President Says

QUANTICO, Va., July 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower said tonight there has been a solid accomplishment in national defense, including the incorporation of "new weapons of unprecedented tactical and strategic importance."

The chief executive set forth his views in a message to Secretary of Defense Wilson as the third annual "secretaries conference" opened at this Marine base.

Eisenhower, who had visited the two previous sessions of the top-level civilian and military officials, expressed his regret at being unable to attend this year. He explained that he leaves tomorrow night for the Geneva four-power meeting.

Although the President did not elaborate on his reference to new weapons, he obviously had in mind the constantly growing, widely varied "family" of nuclear weapons, guided missiles, rockets and other equipment of the atomic age arsenal. Nuclear weapons now range in power from small, tactical size bombs, artillery shells and missile warheads for use against troops on a battlefield to city-smashing hydrogen bombs.

Emphasis in this year's military meeting is on international aspects of the national defense problems, although the civilian chiefs, generals and admirals—including the Joint Chiefs of Staff—hold detailed reviews and discussions of problems, no decisions are made at the Quantico conferences.

Air Pollution Bill Inked

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed a bill authorizing a five-year, 25-million-dollar program of federal aid to combat air pollution.

American Motors Rejects Union Plan, Sets Off Fight

DETROIT, July 14 (AP)—American Motors Corp. and the CIO United Auto Workers engaged in a heated exchange of press releases today, then broke off contract negotiations until Aug. 8—only four days before their current pact expires.

DETROIT, July 14 (AP)—A statement by American Motors Corp. that it has rejected a union contract proposal patterned after the General Motors and Ford layoff-pay agreements set off a fight today.

The CIO United Auto Workers denied a proposal on that basis had been made the company and charged American Motors with having "dishonorably" taken union negotiation remarks "out of context."

The union also accused the firm of a "double cross" in lifting a news "blackout" on negotiations.

The American Motors-UAW contract talks are the first in the industry's smaller manufacturer field since the GM and Ford contracts were negotiated.

Leonard Woodcock, a UAW-CIO vice president and chief negotiator, attacked statements made today by Edward L. Cushman, vice president in charge of American Motors industrial relations.

"Cushman has taken remarks made in negotiations dishonorably out of context and put them in a press release," Woodcock said.

The union also challenged American Motors claims that its workers were paid more than Ford and General Motors employes as a result of what American Motors called "pattern plus" bargaining on the union's part.

American Motors demanded an end to a bargaining tactic which it said has "penalized" it in competition in the industry.

July Snowball Fight In Dixie

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 14 (AP)—A snowball fight in the middle of July will be one of the highlights of the Southern garment manufacturers convention.

An Akron, Ohio trucking firm, intent on impressing possible customers, packed away 500 snowballs last winter for this occasion.

The snowballs are being shipped in.

Alexander Defers Repeating Charges

BALTIMORE, July 14 (AP)-Francis D. Alexander, former Washington real estate man whose land speculation charges were partly responsible for formal charges being filed against a suspended State Roads Commission employe Ben Du Pre, refused today to repeat "most of the serious accustions" in a meeting with SRC officials and Du Pre's lawyer.

Walter R. Tabler Jr., counsel for Du Pre said Alexander did, however, indicate his willingness to repeat all his earlier charges when he testifies at the formal hearing for Du Pre, set for 10 a.m. next Thursday before State Personnel Commissioner Russell H. Davis.

Boy, 11, Drowns

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., July 14 (AP)—Harry Junior Longerbeam, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Longerbeam of Pipertown, drowned today in the Shenandoah River about six miles south of Charles Town.

Witnesses told State Police the boy who couldn't swim, was wading with two young girl friends when he apparently stepped off a sand bar into deeper water.

Tin ore, a dioxide of tin, was long known in England as tinstone.

Practice Of Heaping Praise On Scoundrels At Funerals Viewed With Some Misgivings

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP) — Whether they've been saints or scoundrels, the dead often are heaped with praise at their funerals.

The practice is widely recognized by clergymen today, and not without some misgivings.

"It's basically hypocritical for ministers to eulogize misspent lives," said the Rev. Dr. John Wimbish, of Calvary Baptist Church.

"Yet many tend to gloss over the bad aspects of past lives with pious platitudes, almost as if there's no judgment for wrongdoing."

Churchmen, however, see compelling motives for citing the good even in the worst men, and for avoiding critical appraisals at the time of death.

"It is because of the recognition that judgment is by God alone, and not by man," said the Rev. Ian Grimmett, of Park Avenue Methodist Church.

"While by immediate human standards, a man may have been a bad man, we don't know what was in his heart, nor from what springs his behavior rose. We just don't know the deeps of any human being's mind."

Thus, he said, clergymen say "Err on the side of mercy" in funeral sermons. But he added that some go to extremes and ignore the implications of a glaringly depraved life, and so distort its meaning for the living.

"If this is not dishonesty," he said, "It is at least theological indiscretion."

The subject came to public attention recently after Dr. Julius Mark, of Temple Emanu-el, spoke candidly at the funeral of the ruthless financial manipulator and draft dodger Serge Rubenstein.

A "brilliant talent wasted," Dr. Mark said in his sermon, "a life that might have been useful blasted." But Dr. Mark also noted good qualities of the man—his family devotion—and pointed out only God could pass final judgment.

The sermon drew comment and self-searching among the clergy. Most of those interviewed commended Dr. Mark for his "courage and forthrightness."

"Ministers should not equivocate," Dr. Mark said. "If relatives insist on a funeral address, and unfortunately many do, the minister should be truthful and at the same time compassionate.

"This is particularly true in these times when youth tends to glorify those who think they can get away with anything. A minister should try to describe the finished life in true perspective, without judging."

In some churches — Episcopal and Roman Catholic—there generally is no funeral sermon. The service consists only of prescribed prayers, scriptures and devotions of the Requiem Mass.

Many individual pastors in other denominations also omit special sermons.

The Rev. Dr. John S. Land of the St. Charles Avenue Presbyterian Church of New Orleans, La., said he makes no "personal remarks" even when "the deceased is a prominent person."

"Praising and blaming alike are not practical," he said. "The life of the departed speaks for itself.

"The whole service should make everyone confront God in His majesty and mercy in the hope the bereaved will be comforted and all present will see themselves in the light of eternity."

"One-Man Railroad" Dies At Illinois Home

NEWARK, Ill., July 14 (AP) — The one-man engineer, brakeman, conductor, freight agent and repairman of the Illinois-Midland Railroad has died, ending a picturesque era in Illinois railroading.

Bill Thorsen, 67, died this week at his home in this village 55 miles southwest of Chicago.

For 25 years Thorsen was operator and sole employe of the Illinois-Midland, whose assets include an old steam engine, several freight cars and two miles of track stretching between this community of 457 and Millington, population 270, on the main line of a major railroad. The steam engine hauled cars of coal and grain.

Besides doing all the jobs of a train crew, Thorsen kept up the tracks and did all the repairs on the locomotive.

Route Of Turnpike Extension Revealed

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 14 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission today announced the route of a 46-mile extension of the Keystone state's toll road that will connect with the New York State thruway and the proposed Ohio Turnpike.

The new spur is designed to include a 44-foot medial strip never before used in the Pennsylvania Turnpike system.

The road, which will cost about 62 million dollars, will parallel U. S. Route 20.

The extension will run an average of five miles south of the Lake Erie shoreline coming to within one mile at the eastern terminus and within 2½ miles south of the lake on the west end.

The route will pass within 1¼ miles of the southeastern corner of the city of Erie, Pa.

Designing the new roadway will start immediately with a tentative target date of Jan. 1 to begin awarding contracts for construction. The new spur is expected to be opened to the public by late 1957.

Report Shows State Economic Picture Bright

BALTIMORE, July 14 (AP)—The Department of Employment Security reported today there were about 802,709 workers on non-farm jobs in Maryland in May.

It estimated there were about 42,000 unemployed in the state at the same time—only 4.2 per cent of the total civilian labor force. A year earlier the ratio was 5.7 per cent.

In the six weeks or so it has taken to compile the detailed figures for May, other indicators have reflected an even brighter employment picture in the state.

The number of new claims for unemployment benefits dwindled to a 1955 low in June before moving upward again last week because of vacation shutdowns at several industrial plants.

In commenting on its May statistics, the department noted employment on non-farm jobs increased from 789,000 in March to 802,700 in May and the number of unemployed declined by 6,500.

Seasonal factors accounted for some of the gains. The construction industry, for example, picked up steam as the weather opened up. Tin can factories added to their work forces in preparation for the summer canning season. The coming of the racing and baseball seasons added new jobs.

But some of the gains were not pegged to seasonal movements.

Steel plants, aircraft factories, automobile assembly plants and other makers of durable goods expanded their payrolls.

"Significant increases also were apparent on interstate railroads as recalls of shop and maintenance forces continued," the report said.

"There were 18,500 more wage earners in the state this May than in May 1954.

"Primary metals and transportation equipment reflected the most significant gains. Important gains were apparent in textiles, due to significant improvement in the acetate industry in Western Maryland."

Increased industrial activity in the Baltimore metropolitan area in May put employment figures 1.5 per cent higher than a year earlier. It was the first time in 18 months the current figure had been higher than in the previous year.

The gains also produced a slight increase in the average work week for production workers in factories throughout the state in May—40.9 hours instead of 40.5. The average hourly wage increased two cents, to $1.81, and average weekly earnings jumped from $68.20 to $73.89.

Four-Jet Seaplane Makes First Flight

BALTIMORE, July 14 (AP) — The four-jet SeaMaster, newest plane produced by Glenn L. Martin Co. for the Navy, made its initial test flight today.

It took off from the mouth of Middle River in Chesapeake Bay and was airborne for two hours.

Martin spokesmen said the Navy would not let it say any more about the test flight for security reasons.

The fact Martin was building the SeaMaster was announced several months ago and at the time it was indicated the big seaplane is designed to cruise at 40,000 feet at better than 600 miles an hour. It also was described as capable of carrying an atomic bomb.

Tug Owners, Union Seek End To Strike

BALTIMORE, July 14 (AP)—Representatives of striking tugboat workers and tugboat owners met today with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in an effort to settle a two-day-old walkout.

Some 40 deckhands and engine crews, all unlicensed personnel, struck yesterday with only three hours notice. A few ship movements were delayed but generally the port was not heavily affected.

The unlicensed workers are seeking a 30-cent an hour increase over their present hourly pay of $1.38.

Labor and management met last night to negotiate a contract for the tugboat officers who are licensed.

Former Policeman Shoots Step-Daughter, Kills Self

FEDERALSBURG, Md., July 14 (AP)—George R. Westbrook, 52-year-old former Branchville, N. J., policeman who has operated gift and hobby shops here about three years, shot and critically wounded his 17-year-old step-daughter today and then killed himself.

State Police Cpl. Gus Koste said Westbrook and his step-daughter apparently quarreled over her intentions to marry.

The girl, Elizabeth B. Kelson, was taken to Memorial Hospital at Easton, Md. She was wounded in the right side near the Abdomen.

Westbrook shot himself in the mouth. Dr. Dawson O. George, Caroline County medical examiner, pronounced him dead of a self-inflicted wound.

Westbrook and his step-daughter were the only ones at the Westbrook home two miles north of Federalsburg.

Mrs. Westbrook was tending the new gift and novelty store which the family opened only last week in federalsburg.

Westbrook stopped in a hardware store this morning and bought a seven-shot .22 target pistol, explaining some New Jersey friends were coming to visit him Sunday and they wanted to do some target shooting.

The store owner told police that Westbrook seemed in good spirits and chatted for 15 minutes.

Floyd Medford, an oil company employe on his way to Chestertown, was attracted by the girl's calls for help as he passed the Westbrook house about 10 a.m. She was sitting under a tree in the yard. Westbrook was found in a pool of blood in the kitchen.

The step-daughter was too seriously wounded to be questioned about the tragedy but Cpl. Koste said he had learned Westbrook had objected to her plans to marry.

Death Sentence For Vet Upheld

ANNAPOLIS, July 14 (AP) — The Court of Appeals today left Eugene E. Bryant with executive clemency as his hope for escaping the gallows for the murder of his pregnant 17-year-old sweetheart.

The court upheld a Howard County Circuit Court decision in the case which was removed from Prince Georges County because Bryant felt he could get a fair trial there.

The 21-year-old Korean War veteran was convicted of shooting Joan Marie Ruzza near her Capitol Heights home the evening of April 8, 1954, after her father had complained of the Suitland High School girl seeing Bryant.

During the trial, Bryant vowed his love for the girl and even told her parents in a letter that he would ask the death penalty for himself after proving he was mentally irresponsible for the crime. She had returned his engagement ring after her father's objections.

Howard A. Vogel, Washington attorney who represented Bryant, had asked the appeals court to upset the conviction for a number of reasons, including a contention that Bryant was insane at the time and that the late Circuit Judge James Clark was antagonistic and prejudiced toward the youth and himself during the trial.

The high court again upheld the State's Spencer "right-wrong" test in denying Bryant's insanity plea.

This standard, in effect, rules a person insane only if he was unable to determine right from wrong at the time of the crime.

Vaccine Will Be Flown To W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 14 (AP)—State Health Director N. H. Dyer announced today that vaccine for second round anti-polio shots in the state would arrive here tomorrow.

Dr. Dyer said enough vaccine to inoculate 89,305 school children will be flown in. The vaccine was manufactured by Wyeth and Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., he said.

Aug. 1 has been set as completion date for administering the vaccine. Dyer said the early date was stipulated by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis because the vaccine should not be stored.

Some 106,000 West Virginia first and second grade school children received first round shots this spring and were awaiting the release of additional vaccine before receiving the second.

Tractor Runs Over Farmer, Keeps Going

SANDY SPRING, Md., July 14 (AP)—A farmer was crushed yesterday by a tractor which kept going for a quarter mile before bogging down in a ravine.

Paul Dubik, 31-year-old tenant farmer, suffered a fractured pelvis. He was reported in satisfactory condition today at Montgomery County General Hospital.

Police said Dubik fell from the tractor and was run over on the Laughlin farm near here. He was found 45 minutes after the accident when the tractor, its wheels still spinning, was sighted in the ravine.

State Demos Talk Of Tawes-Luber Ticket In 1958

CAMBRIDGE, July 14 (AP)—Democrats here on a Legislative Council tour were taking a long look into the future, today as they talked up a possible 1958 ticket of J. Millard Tawes for governor and John C. Luber for comptroller.

Tawes, a favorite son of the Eastern Shore, has often been discussed as a possible candidate for governor. Last year, he stepped aside in favor of H. C. Byrd, who was defeated by Republican Gov. McKeldin.

The proposed ticket would have Luber, 5th District Baltimorean and speaker of the House of Delegates, stepping into the post of comptroller, now held by Tawes.

Tawes was not opposed in last year's elections.

Eastern Shore support has also helped Luber hold his House speakership. The Baltimore delegate had nothing to say about the possible ticket. He didn't agree that it would be a good idea, nor did he attempt to discourage his supporters.

Luber is a certified public accountant, which would qualify him for the important treasury spot.

In the last General Assembly, Luber retained his spot as speaker of the House through Eastern Shore support in the face of a strong bid from Del. Wilkinson (D-Prince Georges).

Luber has been speaker since 1951 and a member of the House since 1938.

The possible Tawes-Luber ticket is the first given serious mention among Democrats rankling from two straight unsuccessful attempts to beat McKeldin.

Maryland law prohibits McKeldin from seeking a third term, however.

Uranium Dirt Paying Off For Farmer; Hundreds Ante Up $2 Just To Sit In It

COMANCHE, Tex., July 14 (AP)—Former dairyman Jesse F. Reese is making money these days from the uranium he discovered on his farm without having to sell any of his "pay dirt."

He collects $2 each from the 150 persons, seeking relief from aches and pains, who daily are willing to pay for the privilege of sitting for two hours in the uranium-bearing soil.

It was two years ago that Reese discovered uranium on his 216-acre farm. But an assay showed that the uranium content was too low for commercial development so Reese went back to milking his cows.

Last September a stranger knocked on Reese's door.

"If you don't mind, I'd like to sit in your ditch," the man said. He said that he was from the State of Washington and was visiting relatives in Comanche. Back home, he explained, he paid for radiation treatments to relieve rheumatism pains. He had heard about the uranium on Reese's farm and he thought he might get the same benefit from Reese's uranium ditch.

"Go ahead and sit," Reese told him.

He sat in the ditch for 45 minutes. The word got around and others came asking to sit in the ditch. Reese let them sit.

As time passed, the sitters increased. They left gates open and trampled over the fields. Reese had to do something.

He built a small shed in his back yard large enough for six persons to sit on two benches. On the benches and floors he poured the mineral loaded dirt. He also poured the dirt behind the sheetrock walls. On the wall he tacked up a report from the custom assay office stating that the soil contained U308 in the quantity of .025.

Then he declared that anybody who wanted to could sit in his dirt for the price of $2 for two hours.

"I thought that would keep them away," he said. "I hoped it would."

The first week it almost did. Only one person paid the $2. But then more started coming.

All the time Reese made it clear that he claimed nothing. He merely told the people that if they wished to sit in his dirt they could do so, for a price.

He even made each visitor sign a printed pledge saying he voluntarily asked to visit the farm, was not solicited and that nobody made a claim or representation as to the result of such visits.

By June of this year people were standing in line to get into the shed. Reese called in carpenters and expanded the shed to 10 times its original size. In the center of the enlarged shed he placed a helper at a table with a record book and a watch. She takes the money and tells each visitor when the two hours are up.

Right now an average of 150 persons visit Reese's shed daily and even the new shed isn't big enough.

Reese is having his dairy barn converted — he's sold his milk cows since the uranium rush has started — and is fixing it up to handle more visitors. In one corner of the barn he plans to open a restaurant.

Visitors — most of them elderly —sit quietly with their bare feet covered with the dirt. Some hold cardboard boxes full of dirt in their laps and keep their hands in the dirt.

D. C. Waters, 75, of Deleon, Tex., said he was making his eighth visit to the farm to ease his arthritis pains. Before visiting the farm, he was unable to use his arms or shoulders. Now he says he can.

Loid Edwards, 50, works in a Coleman, Tex., brick factory. He says his knees started bothering him because of the heavy loads of bricks he had to carry but that after four visits to the Reese farm his knees are stronger.

Dozens of others told of how dirt-sitting had relieved their pains from rhumatism, arthritis, phlebitis and other ailments.

Reese says he is going to have to set a 7 p.m. curfew so he can clear the visitors from his farm by 9 p.m. so he and his wife can get some sleep.

"The other night they were sitting out there way past midnight," he said.

Kremlin Faces Museum Role

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP) — They're turning the clock back in the Kremlin. Large crews of workmen are restoring the interior of the ancient fortress to its old appearance with the aim of again making it a museum instead of seat of government.

Removal of government leaders and government functions from the Kremlin has been going on gradually since Stalin's death. For the past year and a half the Kremlin gates have been increasingly thrown open to the public — to Soviet citizens and also to thousands of foreign guests.

One used to have to be a big shot to get through those gates but now, the Russian press reports, 3,000 Soviet and foreign sightseers are admitted daily to walk through the ancient churches, the palaces, the rich museums.

In addition, the trade unions and the Komsomol (Communist Youth League) and other organizations give many parties here for children and youth.

Russian Movie Industry Lags, Director Says

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP)—A top Russian film director complains that the Soviet movie industry is in bad shape—especially technically, but also artistically.

This is the theme of an angry three-column article in Literary Gazette, newspaper of the Soviet writers union, signed by Mikhail Romm, Stalin prize winner known for his film "Lenin in October." The article is jointly signed by two colleagues, Edward Tisse and Alexander Shelinkov.

The article—denouncing everything from shallow scenarios to shoddy, outmoded and scarce equipment—has created quite a sensation, especially among Russians who believed their movie industry was far ahead of Hollywood and the rest of the world.

Romm and other Russian movie leaders, who get to see the best of the western product, know what they are talking about. Nor do they miss the fact that when Moscow audiences get to see such Hollywood oldtimers as Great Garbo in 'Camille" and Robert Taylor and Vivien Leigh in "Waterloo Bridge" they form long queues.

"We workers in the cinema industry are facing a serious problem," writes Romm. "We must produce 150 pictures a year, according to the new plan, and sharply reduce the production time for each film. . . .

"There exist today a number of factors seriously obstructing the growth of our Soviet movie art. For instance there are not enough good scenarios, especially on modern subjects. For another thing, we have not solved the problem of bringing in young producers, to give our youth a chance to bring new ideas into the industry.

"And another serious obstacle in our development is our lagging behind in techniques . . . .

"How many times during the shooting of Romeo and Juliet did we have to have (prime ballerina) Galina Ulanova again and again repeat the same scene because of imperfect lighting apparatus? In the film 'Admiral Ushakov' a major scene had to be taken 12 times, and still came out poorly because the noise of the arc lights prevented us from clearly hearing the words of the actors. The same thing happens in every film.

"In many foreign countries they use electrical lamp equipment which has enormous advantages over the arc—noiseless, even light distribution etc . . . .

"We do not have enough microphones at the studios and their technical status is so old that the sound recording quality is extremely low."

Nation Changes Policy Toward Atom Education

WASHINGTON (AP)—A year ago officials would have gone to jail for it, but now the United States is educating people all over the world in secrets of the atom.

On Aug. 8, delegates from more than 60 countries, including the Reds, will be able to stand beside a pool of water in Geneva, Switzerland, and watch the operation of an atomic furnace built at Oak Ridge. The furnace was shipped by air to Geneva June 30.

In this country more than 100 students from dozens of countries are studying the uses of atomic isotopes and the operations of reactors, the scientific name for atomic furnaces.

Libraries of technical knowledge—the basic information on peaceful uses of atomic energy—have been given to many countries.

Special agreements have been signed with 26 friendly nations to provide them with reactors and with the uranium fuel to make them work. President Eisenhower has asked Congress to provide funds — probably between three million and five million dollars to pay as much as half the cost of the reactor for countries which may be short of cash.

"Some people say we never do anything about the atom," an administration official said this week. "But they don't look at the record. It's a terrific record. We're making our knowledge and our resources available for peaceful purposes as rapidly as is humanly possible."

The basic authority for this was provided by Congress in the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. President Eisenhower signed it last August. That act pulled the wraps off huge amounts of information previously clothed in secrecy.

The act even made it possible for the President and the Defense Department to tell allied countries, like Britain, France and Italy, about some military uses of atomic energy. For example, the power and employment of atomic weapons.

Authorities have said that this has helped bring America's European allies fully into the atomic age. Aside from the British they had no hard information and therefore little comprehension of what atomic weapons could mean to future warfare.

The focal point of United States efforts to educate the world in the peaceful uses of atomic energy will be the Geneva conference to be held Aug. 8 through 20. It will follow by less than a month the Big Four summit meeting beginning July 18.

The United Nations is sponsoring the great atomic fair at Geneva. All members of the U.N. and its specialized agencies, totaling 84, were invited. This list includes the Soviet Union and most of its satellites but not such countries as Red China and East Germany.

President Eisenhower ordered major American efforts for this conference, not in a spirit of competition with the Soviets but in an effort, he said, to show what the United States is trying to do for nations everywhere.

Atomic Power Sale To Begin

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 14 (AP)—The U. S. government will begin selling atomic-produced electric power shortly.

The first customer will be the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., which supplies a wide area of upstate New York.

The Atomic Energy Commission announcing the plan today, said the price had been set at three mills per kilowatt hour. The sale will begin "in the near future," the AEC said.

Power will be sold to Niagara Mohawk on a temporary basis, the AEC said, pending determination of whether three public power agencies — two in New York State and one in Massachusetts — would be able to assume their preference rights under the 1954 Atomic Energy Act.

A 10,000-kilowatt turbine generator, operated by steam from a prototype submarine reactor at nearby West Milton, will supply power to the Niagara Mohawk system.

The generator was installed and will be operated — at no cost to the government — by the General Electric Co. GE operates the AEC installation at West Milton.

The electric power produced by the generator would light 35,000 homes in a year, an AEC spokesman said.

France Remembers

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—The 45,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart has arrived for a visit to help commemorate the 175th anniversary of the landing of French forces in Rhode Island to help fight the American Revolution.

Bulganin Has No Intention Of Resting On His Laurels

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOWN, July 14, (AP)—Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin told a Western diplomat last fall, "I'm just an old soldier ready to retire on my pension."

But he spoke with a smile. And those who heard him took the characterization no more seriously than the handsome, white-goateed marshal apparently meant it.

Bulganin was the Soviet Union's defense minister then.

His subsequent career shows he has no intention of resting on his laurels.

He has taken over the premiership from Georgi Malenkov, shaken up the government, spearheaded formation of the Communist bloc's answer to NATO, negotiated in Belgrade with Yugoslav President Tito and now appears set to parley at the summit with President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Faure at a conference which could change world history.

Which brings up the questions: How can you be sure who is the summit in the Soviet Union? Is Bulganin or the chief of the ruling Communist party, Nikita S. Khrushchev, really the fountainhead of authority?

It seems to Moscow observers that for practical purposes—and the Russians certainly assume the Geneva conference has a practical purpose—the Soviet summit is any man the group of top leaders in the Kremlin say it is. And they have left no doubt they want Bulganin regarded as the real head and the voice of authority.

Khrushchev, himself, threw the Communist party's prestige behind Bulganin when he nominated the marshal for the premiership last Feb. 8.

The Communist chieftain has since laughed off questions from newsmen as to whether he was a power behind the throne. "Let's have another drink," Khrushchev says. "Ask me another time."

Almost every decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) since the fall of Malenkov states specifically that it was enacted on the recommendation of Comrade Bulganin.

Bulganin, 60, was an early member of the Communist party and an official of the Cheka, a quasi-military group that dealt with enemies of the revolution.

He moved up by stages under Stalin's eyes to the Supreme Council of the Economy, boss of Moscow's power plant, mayor of Moscow, Premier of the Russian Federated Republic, vice premier of the U.S.S.R., political adviser to military commanders on the Western front, and defense minister.

Bulganin took a concentrated course in military theory in the 1930s, but most of his life with the armed forces has been on the political and strategical side, rather than commanding troops afield.

If Bulganin acts in Geneva as he does in Moscow the Western Big Three will find he can be dignified, impressive and jovial all at the same time.

The Premier is a man of immense self-assurance; portly, sort of everybody's grandfather. He has tremendous personal charm.

Good Deed Brings Suit

YONKERS, N. Y., July 14 (AP) — To help keep the Otis Elevator Co. in Yonkers, the city closed off part of Wells Avenue and turned it over to the company for more efficient plant operation.

Now the Westchester Ferry Corp., which operates a ferry across the Hudson River to New Jersey, is suing the city for $750,000.

It claims Wells Avenue is an important vehicular approach to the ferry slip and it will lose revenue by the closing.

Foreign Student Record

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—A record number of foreign students came to the United States to study during the 1954-55 academic year.

The Institute of International Education said they numbered 34,232. Previous high was 33,833 in 1953-54.

The institute said 129 nations and areas were represented among this year's students. The largest number came from Canada.

Quiet-Spoken Ky. Sen. Clements Gains Solid Support As Democratic Leader

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Kentucky's quiet-spoken Earle C. Clements appears to have marshaled solid Democratic backing in his role of substitute for Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Johnson, who was stricken with a heart attack on July 2, may be out of action for several months. His doctors have suggested the possibility they will oppose his resuming the arduous duties they blame for his illness.

If the time should come that Johnson decides he cannot carry on in the leadership post, Clements seems likely to be promoted from acting to a full-fledged status.

Talks with individual Democrats representing all elements of the party — from self-styled "liberal" to deepest-dyed conservative — yielded praise for Clements and forecasts that he would be chosen leader if Johnson quits the job.

Clements, who makes friends quietly, seems to have made a lot of them in the Senate.

If he became the official leader, Clements would be paralleling Johnson's own rapid rise from the ranks to a party position usually reserved for Senate veterans.

Johnson, now 46, arrived in the Senate on Jan. 3, 1949 and was elected Democratic leader only four years later. Clements began his Senate service Nov. 27, 1950 and was elevated to acting leader last week from his job as Democratic "whip" or assistant leader.

Clements, a stocky bespectacled farmer of 58 who speaks with the drawl of his native Kentucky, has announced he intends to continue Johnson's policies.

Judging from past performance, that would mean the Democrats will continue to pinpoint their opposition to certain domestic policies of the Eisenhower administration while supporting with a fanfare most of the administration's foreign moves.

It would mean more of the party line votes by which Johnson has been able to demonstrate unusual Democratic unity.

It would entail the strict attention to protocol by which every member who had a vital interest was consulted before any controversial bill was brought before the Senate.

It would involve countless backstage compromises of varying Democratic viewpoints on legislation and appointments. It would mean constant herd-riding on committees to keep bills flowing to the Senate floor.

It would require the continued bottling up of some controversial issues to avoid the filibusters that have ripped Democratic ranks in the past. It would necessitate strict public neutrality in the underground contest now smouldering over the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination.

Clements learned his politics at the courthouse level. After a World War I tour in the infantry which carried him from the rank of enlistee to captain, Clements became successively sheriff, clerk and judge of Union County, Ky.

From there he went to the Kentucky State Senate in 1941, becoming majority floor leader of that body in 1944. Two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives helped prepare him for a successful governor's race in 1947.

From Frankfort, where he was credited with building a political organization still powerful in the state, it was only a step to the U.S. Senate in 1950. He was elected to fill out a short term and also the six-year term expiring in January 1957.

If he doesn't aim higher, Clements will be running again next year in a state that sometimes elects Republicans to the Senate. Whether he will have Republican opposition from former Sen. John Sherman Cooper, now ambassador to India, remains to be seen.

A native of Morganfield, Ky., Clements was educated at the University of Kentucky. He married the former Sara Blue of Morganfield and they have a daughter, Elizabeth Hughes Clements.

Individual Savings Show Sharp Drop

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Individuals saved $1,700,000,000 in the first quarter of this year, sharply down from the $2,300,000,000 of a year ago, the Securities and Exchange Commission reported today.

The shift, said SEC, "reflects the substantial growth in individuals' debts" mainly in the form of housing mortgages and installment purchase of automobiles.

On the strength of the housing boom, mortgage debt climbed $2,700,000,000, only slightly less than the record increase in the last quarter of 1954.

New Mounties' Boat

TORONTO, July 14 (AP) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have a new patrol boat—the $55,000 Cutknife II—believed to be one of the fastest vessels on Lake Ontario. Rated at more than 35 knots, it was launched here Tuesday.

Kids In Orphanage Receive Allowance

CORSICANA, Tex., July 14 (AP)—Just like youngsters with real families, kids in the Corsicana state orphans home now get an allowance.

Before he died three years ago, John C. Wende of Austin, Tex., set aside income from some of his property to provide spending money for the orphans here. Litigation over the will delayed the first allowance money, which arrived this week in the form of a $1,089.60 check.

Supt. R. I. Boyd said there'll be a check of about $1,200 every three months, enough for about $1 a week per orphan.

Newspapers Lead Way

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP) — Newspapers scored greater gains in advertising in May over April than other media, Printers' Ink magazine's general index of national advertising showed yesterday.

The newspapers' gain in May over April was six per cent, making it the best May on record, Printers' Ink said.

Horror-Sex Comic Books Curbed In Dozen States

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—State legislators this year found little to laugh at in some of the millions of comic books produced annually in the United States.

An Associated Press survey shows 12 states enacted laws to curb comic books depicting horror, sex or violent crimes — either banning them completely or forbidding their sale to persons under 18 years of age.

Those states are Oregon, Maryland, Montana, New Jersey, Connecticut, Texas, North Carolina, Washington, Nevada, New York, Illinois and Oklahoma.

Anticomic book legislation was being considered in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Vermont and Rhode Island created committees to study the comic book problem and report to the next sessions of the legislatures on the desirability of prohibitive legislation.

In nine states—Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, New Mexico, Utah, Delaware, South Dakota, Indiana and Wisconsin—anticomic book legislation was introduced but failed to gain approval.

A series of articles by Irving Kravsow, State House reporter for the Hartford Courant, calling certain comic books inherently vicious, preceded action by the Connecticut Legislature. After outlawing the sale and display of offensive comics to minors, both houses of the Legislature unanimously passed resolutions commending the Courant and Kravsow.

New York made it a misdemeanor to publish or distribute comic books devoted to sex, brutality or lurid crime, or to sell or show any books featuring sex, crime or horror to minors.

Oklahoma gave mayors and municipal governing boards the power to bring suits to stop the sale or distribution of obscene comic books to youngsters.

In Montana, it is now a misdemeanor — with a mandatory jail sentence on the second offense — to sell or distribute offensive comic books. The law was written to make it workable "without prohibiting the sale of decent magazines," said state Sen. Donovan Worden, a Missoula Republican.

Selling comic books portraying mayhem, sex acts or the use of narcotics has been prohibited in North Carolina.

Maryland passed a similar law but limited the offense to selling such comic books to minors.

Washington's Legislature passed a law licensing wholesale and retail comic book dealers. The license can be suspended or canceled if the dealer offers comic books depicting sex or violence.

On The Line
by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, July 14 (INS)—The pundits are saying that President Eisenhower will confer with Premier Bulganin from a "position of strength." They mean the Russian knows we have more and better arms, more efficient means of delivering them to assigned targets, greater resources and productivity.

We have on our side something even more telling, in the forthcoming battle of wits and words at Geneva. It is simply this:

People behind the Iron Curtain loathe communism as much as we do. And there are more than 800,000,000 of them.

Bulganin and every other man who came to the top in the Red conspiracy against God and man is haunted. He must guard himself continually against his people and his closest associates. On his conscience is at least part of the blood of millions of purged farmers, dissident officials and such defenseless prisoners as political foes and the Polish officers slaughtered in the Katyn forest.

Bulganin must attempt to look Eisenhower in the eye with the awful understanding that the President knows that more than 5,500,000 Soviet troops deserted in World War II (see "What Is Communism?," just put out by E. P. Dutton and Co.)

The Russian also goes to Geneva knowing Eisenhower knows:

The people of the Ukraine spread flowers in the path of Hitler's advancing tanks.

Stalin pleaded with Roosevelt and Churchill for land forces, though he had more divisions than both. Unarmed Germans and Czechs were in open revolt against their Red masters just two years ago, and could rise again. Production in the U.S.S.R. in certain important fields is worse than during the reign of Czar Nicholas. Some 22,000 Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war refused to return home despite threats of terrifying reprisals to families left behind. Three Americans have in the past few days chosen the prospect of long prison terms in this country to freedom behind the Curtain. Not even the sternly edited Communist press can submerge accounts of almost perpetual sabotage and slowdowns harrassing the comparatively tiny band of Communists who have managed to place almost countless millions of workers under their heels.

It seems incomprehensible that we can lose at Geneva as we lost at Tehran, Casablanca, Yalta and Potsdam.

A powerful work, this "What Is Communism?" It strips the subject to the bone. For example, the chapter that sums up the goals, failures and lies of communism in brittle question and answer form.

Q.—Since 1939, the U.S.S.R. has annexed nearly 700,000 square kilometers of territory, and controls an additional satellite area in Eastern Europe of 1,341,225 square kilometers. What is the goal of Communist expansion?

A.—The U.S.S.R. has admitted openly that it seeks total control of the world. As Stalin said, "Our . . . strategy . . . (is) to consolidate the dictatorship of the proletariat in one country, using it as a base for the overthrow of imperialism in all countries. The revolution is spreading beyond the border of one country; the epoch of world revolution has commenced . . ."

There are appalling statistics including: "On the eve of Hitler's invasion of the U.S.S.R. purges crippled the Red army, navy, and air force. Three of five marshals, 11 vice-commissars of defense, 75 of the 80 generals and admirals who formed the supreme military council, 90 per cent of all generals, 80 per cent of the colonels, and 30,000 other officers were killed. Marshal Tukhachevsky, responsible for mechanizing the Red army, was convicted of espionage and "betrayal." Later, six of the eight judges at his court-martial were shot without trial. Of seven former presidents of the U.S.S.R.'s Central Executive Committee, five were murdered, and one was a suicide."

Iberia was the Greek name for the peninsula including modern Spain and Portugal.

Better Late Than Never

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—Mrs. Edward Westemeier has received a letter mailed three years ago. It was addressed to 116 Dare St., Brooklyn, whence the Westemeiers moved only a year ago.

The old address on the envelope had been crossed out, and the Westemeier's present address was written in. The two addresses aren't far apart and are served by the same postal station.

Mexican Cities Grow

MEXICO CITY, July 14 (AP)—The National Construction Industry Chamber says Mexico has about 180 cities of more than 10,000 population, compared with only 97 in 1940. And construction, it says, is keeping pace with this increase in population.

Priests Take Air Training For New Missionary Work

Two of the priests at SS. Peter and Paul Monastery, one of whom is the son of Ridgeley residents, are receiving preliminary flight instructions in anticipation of being assigned this fall to a new Capuchin mission area in Papua, British New Guinea.

The priests, Father Jude Senleur, superior of the monastery, and Father Stanley Miltenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Miltenberger, were among the first to answer the call for volunteers to the new mission field.

Father Stanley had been stationed at a Capuchin mission in Puerto Rico prior to being temporarily assigned to the local monastery several weeks ago.

Father Jude explained that although he and Father Stanley had been granted permission to take the flight instructions, that in itself was no guarantee that either of them would be among the five friars who will be assigned to man the mission station this fall. The call for volunteers was oversubscribed within a few weeks of the original announcement, Father Jude said.

Another member of the Capuchin Order, Father Henry Kusnerik, who had spent nine years in Australia, only recently returned from Papua after completing a survey of conditions in that primitive area. It was on his recommendation to his superiors that air transportation is the only practical way to get the mission started, that permission to learn to fly was granted those who volunteered for the new mission field.

Father Henry visited the local monastery Monday and Tuesday to explain to the local friars the conditions prevalent in the jungles and mountains of New Guinea. The interior of that South Pacific island, he told the Capuchin community, is one of the wildest left in the world and is largely unmapped.

Railway Net Income Jumps

Western Maryland Railway estimated its net income for the first half of this year at $3,375,000 as compared with $2,644,000 for the similar period of 1954.

Net income for the six months on this preliminary basis was equivalent to $4.94 a common share, after allowing for the half-year's dividend requirements on the first and second preferred stocks, but disregarding arrears on the senior preferred. For the six months of last year net was equal to $3.57 a common share.

Gross operating revenues for the half-year were estimated at $22,377,000, up $1,356,000 from the like period a year earlier.

The company's coal business increased substantially in reflection of general industrial prosperity and a larger demand from the utilities, an official of the railroad said. Coal traffic brought in revenues of $8,662,000, up $795,000 from a year earlier. Other freight was estimated at $12,432,000, a gain of $447,000.

Net income for June was tentatively figured at $684,000 as compared with $472,000 for the corresponding month of last year. Gross for June was estimated at $3,865,000 against $3,441,000 a year earlier. Despite the bituminous miners' vacation in the latter part of the month, coal freight revenues of $1,521,000 held about even with May and exceeded June last year by $234,000.

Local Girl Sentenced

A 17-year-old South End girl was sentenced yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court to the Montrose School for Girls as a delinquent minor.

Magistrate Donald W. Mason said the girl was picked up earlier this week on a streetwalking charge and was held for a physical examination.

The girl's parents claimed they could do nothing with her, he added.

The lady in brown is most fashionable.

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

The summer favorites are back again this year . . . the pretty pastels and pure white . . . the usual low-Fahrenheit and cool way of dressing. But, check brown for newness. This is the up and coming color that has swept all of Paris. Keep your eye on it now and even more so for fall.

Already color experts in the know for cosmetic houses are mixing new powder shades and experimenting with different exciting shades of lipsticks and other beauty aids to find those that will be most flattering to the fashionable women who will step out in brown this fall and right through the winter.

Very much in evidence currently is the ultra chic woman wearing the summer molded sheath in brown. Or, the bouffant, petticoated long torso dress . . . or the long tunic over a saber-thin skirt . . . in brown cotton or silk is noted.

If you want to give last year's cottons a new look, dye them brown. Or, give them new life by adding brown accessories . . . perhaps a panne velvet beret or a deep bucket cloche in brown velvet. Velvet may be a paradox with cottons, but it's one of the smartest ways of dressing this summer. Take a shirtwaist dress gone sleeveless for sunshine . . . say in a brown pindot on white cotton.

Add a narrow brown velvet tailored belt and a large velvet cartwheel . . . you couldn't look prettier.

All the browns are popular this season starting from the top with dark brown and going right down the line to ecru, beige, pongee, and khaki. And, don't forget an important companion of the brown family . . . gay yellow. Most name designers have featured something in yellow . . . whether it's dresses, play clothes, separates or beach wear.

District Income, Spending Reported Up

Prosperity is on the march in Cumberland, with families earning more and spending more than those in most sections of the United States.

The facts are revealed in Sales Management's new copyrighted survey of buying power, covering the entire country.

They show that business activity in Cumberland reached new heights in the past year, with retail stores chalking up a sales volume of $54,275,000, Sales Management noted.

The amount was much more than should have been expected for a city of its size. On the basis of population, local retail activity should have been only .0236 per cent of the national. Actually, however, it was .0319 per cent.

The large scale buying, which meant more luxurious living, is tied to a prosperous population, the magazine said. Better earnings made it possible, it added. The data shows that the 11,700 families in Cumberland had a net income last year, after deduction of personal taxes, of $51,166,000. It marked a gain over the $48,488,000 accounted for in 1953.

The local earnings total, divided by the number of families in the city, represents a net income of $4,373 per family.

The fact that sales were in excess of income locally shows that Cumberland is the trading hub for much of the surrounding area.

The general rising income situation, the experts agree, is a sound one, based on a stabilized dollar and an economy built on decreasing defense spending.

How each community stands with relation to others in purchasing ability and economic well-being is shown in the survey by a "quality of market" index. This is a weighted figure that takes into account population, income, sales and other factors. Cumberland's index is given as 104, or 4 per cent above the national average.

All clothing, jewels, household goods, furniture and furnishings were bequeathed to another daughter, Mrs. Viola Dickens, Silver Spring.

All real property, including an apartment dwelling and adjacent lot, as well as a business establishment at 1000 Virginia Avenue were bequeathed to Mrs. Dickens and another daughter, Mrs. Mary Cimmino, 137 Polk Street.

The rest of the property, real, personal or mixed was left to Mrs. Cimmino and Mrs. Dickens, to be divided between them.

Meeting Set On School Sewer Work

Westernport Claims Violation Of Laws

WESTERNPORT — William A. Douglas, president of the George F. Hazlewood Company, Cumberland, has advised Mayor Okey E. Michael that he will meet with the Mayor and Council on Tuesday at 4 p. m. at the site of the new high school in reference to a sewer line now being constructed by the company.

Mayor Michael also plans to contact members of the Allegany County Board of Education to meet with the group. Meanwhile work on the sewer line was halted yesterday at noon after Westernport officials served papers on the foreman charging the contractor with the violation of three town laws.

Work is not expected to resume until after the Tuesday meeting.

The papers were served personally by Mayor Okey Michael, Town Policeman William Wilkinson Jr. and Water Commissioner Harry Richards.

The George F. Hazelwood Company, contractors on the big new school project, is charged with violating five sections of Town Ordinance 3, namely, tapping on a sewer line without a permit, destroying a catch basin, and reducing the sewer pipe from 21 to 18 inches in diameter.

The summons were handed William Riley, the foreman, according to Mayor Michael.

The action followed a meeting of the Westernport Mayor and Council Wednesday when the body met to discuss the water draining situation which has resulted from construction work on the new school.

Town officials claimed that as a result of the grading of the school grounds, the natural water course has been diverted.

The contractor, the officials alleged, has destroyed a catch basin and is putting in a temporary sewer where a permanent one should be laid.

This, they declare, was done without the permission of the town. The officials stated Wednesday they intended to notify the contractor to halt work.

The Mayor and Council stated last that letters were to be sent to the members of the Board of Education and the contractor.

Apparently, the council changed its mind since then and decided to take immediate legal action.

Westernport Purchases Oil For Streets

Filtration Plans To Be Submitted

WESTERNPORT — Twenty-eight hundred gallons of oil will be purchased from the Garland Petroleum Company of Cumberland to oil the unimproved streets of the town.

It was also ordered at the regular meeting of Mayor Okey E. Michael and Town Commissioners Wednesday evening that the Liller Brothers Contracting Company be employed to oil the streets.

Where necessary before the streets are oiled the employes of the street department will fill in the holes.

James Worgan conferred with the city officials relative to placing a curb in front of his property on Wood Street.

The next meeting of the Mayor and Council will be held Wednesda, evening, July 20, at 6 o'clock.

John Glace of Glace and Glace Engineering Firm of Harrisburg, Pa., will submit plans for the construction of a filtration plant and the erection of an auxiliary storage water tank which the town plans to accept.

The town officials then will authorize the advertising for bids for the building of a filtration plant. The town has already purchased the land to place the filtration plant on.

They have two sites recommended by the engineers for the auxiliary water tank to supply an adequate water supply for the Green's Addition area and the new Westernport High School. A decision of which of the two sites the town will use for the storage tank has not been determined.

German Girl Speaker At Lions' Meet

Moorefield Group Planning Excursion

MOOREFIELD — Miss Geisla Zorn, international farm youth exchange student from Berlin, Germany, spending a month on Hardy County farms, spoke at the Moorefield Lions Club meeting recently at the Hotel McNeill. She talked on farm life in her section of Germany.

Miss Zorn explained that the 4-H program, now being expanded in Germany, could not be as successful there as in U. S. because of the apprenticeship system for training farm youth in that country. She said the training and objectives of the 4-H work was already an integral part of the apprenticeship system.

Miss Zorn had with her many slides of typical German scenes and explained them as she talked. She expressed astonishment at the number of meetings everyone attends in the U. S. She said in Germany the people belonged to one club or rarely two, but that going to meetings every night was unheard of.

She said the family unit was much stronger as people stayed at home with their own families.

Miss Zorn said that in the U. S. you could travel from one end of the country to another and that no one ever asks for passport. She contrasted that with an example of a six-hour journey leaving Germany and having to show her papers, passport and credentials three times.

The petite and pretty exchange student is staying at the farm of S. L. Harper, Jr., this week and was at the farm of Robert L. Baker, Fabius, last week.

Lewis Moomau, chairman of the Lions Club excursion committee, announced that the annual excursion by special B & O train would be on Sunday, August 21, this year. The excursion will be jointly sponsored by the Moorefield Lions Club and the Petersburg Kiwanis Club.

In addition to the scenic trip through the trough and the South Branch valley on the special train, a trip to Mount Vernon has been scheduled going by busses and returning from Mount Vernon to Washington by boat. Sight seeing trips in Washington or a big league baseball game may be substituted for the Mount Vernon trip.

All members of the Lions Club will have tickets available.

W. C. Harper, presiding as the new president of the Moorefield Lions club, named Frank Dodson as chairman for the committee to prepare a float for the State Poultry Festival parade on Thursday, August 4.

R. S. Dispanet, chairman of the telephone committee, reported on the progress in raising finances for the Hardy Telephone Company's equity prior to securing an R E A loan in the amount of $353,000. Dispanet said that more than $8,000 has been paid in by members and that over $4200 has been collected from non-members as their contribution to the project.

Court Upholds

ed in exercising and applying the powers for the amendment of municipal charters which are granted thereto by Article 11E of the Constitution of Maryland."

Article 11E confers the power to amend an existing charter or local laws relating to the incorporation, organization, government or affairs of said municipal corporation. Judge Henderson believes this wording is broad enough to cover anything and everything in the usual city charter and which is within the scope of what are primarily regarded as municipal affairs.

Resolutions Proper

Judge Henderson goes on to say that is proper for the Mayor and City Council to use resolutions in amending or repealing the city charter.

The opinion concludes with the following statements:

"Section 215 to 222 of Article 1A of the Code of Public Local Laws as enacted by Chapter 702 of the Acts of 1951 of the General Assembly, while originally valid, have been repealed by Chapter 423 of the Acts of 1955 passed pursuant to (new) Article 11E of the Constitution of Maryland. Therefore, the proper method of amending the Charter of Cumberland is under provisions of Chapter 423."

"While it was unnecessary to repeal Chapter 702, it was proper to take steps to delete it from its charter. Also this Charter Amendment Resolution No. 1 appears to have been one way in which there could be brought before the court a very troublesome question arising under the new Municipal Home Rule provisions of the Constitution and of the Code to the end that the city may know the proper procedure to be followed in the future.

"Since the provisions of Chapter 702, set out as Sections 115 to 122 of the City Charter, are no longer effective, it is not proper to enjoin the city officials in the present proceeding from deleting them, nor to require them to follow the amendment provisions of Chapter 702."

Geneva Convention Ratified, Belatedly

At long last the United States has ratified the 1949 Geneva conventions on treatment of prisoners of war. As Senator Knowland said, any nation calling itself civilized should comply with these conventions, and they are in the human tradition of which America has been a leading advocate.

The United States played an active role in drafting these revisions of the 1907 conventions to cover situations that arose in two world wars and the wars in Ethiopia and Spain. But the Soviet Union completed ratification 14 months ago.

The delay by this country was not the fault of the Senate. President Truman did not submit the conventions to it for ratification until April, 1951. Not long thereafter, the United States became aware of a new problem—the existence of large numbers of prisoners of war who objected to being returned to Communist China and North Korea.

The 1949 conventions had assumed that all war prisoners would seek to be repatriated, so the Senate was persuaded to pigeonhole the conventions while the State Department did some heavy thinking about repatriation in the light of the Korean War. Only last month was the go-ahead signal given. So it cannot be said that the Senate has been dilatory.

The United States is now on record as approving of humane practices which it has officially upheld all along. Russia, which still holds prisoners taken in World War II and refuses to give an accounting of them, is also on record in favor of the right of prompt repatriation for all prisoners of war, including civilians taken in wartime.

Yet Soviet propaganda during the last 14 months has been using Russia's prior ratification as proof that Americans are gangster-barbarians capable of germ warfare and other fiendish atrocities in Korea.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Saga Of Henry Garfinkle

Life on the East Side of New York was tough half a century ago. Nothing in Horatio Alger's stories ever accurately described the poverty, the crowded living, the inadequate food, the worry over pennies. Into this world was born Henry Garfinkle whose father died at 37 when he, Henry, was a little over 14. Someone had to work, so Henry, the eldest, started at a guaranteed wage of 25 cents a day.

What is news in this is not that a boy rose from rags to riches, from newsboy to the head of the American News Company. That has happened often in the United States. What makes it news is that it is still happening. Smart, enterprising, hard-working men are still doing it and doing it not by conniving and trickery, by strike suits and raids on companies, but by constructive enterprise.

I know Garfinkle. I grew up, in my childhood, in the same environment, in circumstances slightly better than his, for there are degrees of poverty and his family was at the bottom. When he was a newsboy at the Staten Island ferry, his benefactor was Samual I. Newhouse who came from a better environment in Bayonne, New Jersey, but not so much better. Sam staked Henry to $800, which was a fortune for both of them in those days. Today, Sam Newhouse owns some 15 newspapers, among them are very important ones. The $800 Newhouse gave Garfinkle was used to get a newsstand inside the ferry-house at Staten Island.

Henry was, at 17, a capitalist, with a leased property, employing assistants. That was the start of his present important business position. The point of this kind of enterprise is that the boss does most of the work and he lives poor until he can afford to live rich. Even today, Henry Garfinkle has a hoarse voice, the kind that comes from constantly shouting headlines. A 16-to-18-hour day, with the wife helping, that is the kind of capitalism that is still possible in this country. There are many Garfinkles in all parts of the country.

Too many young people, coming out of college, look to jobs that bring some kind of guaranteed living, some kind of security. Too many of them seek a job in which one moves upward by seniority until one graduates into a pension. Men like Henry Garfinkle have never had a guarantee of any kind, neither from their parents nor from a business nor from government. They took their chances on their ability and hard work.

Henry Garfinkle was as surprised as his friends were that he finally achieved his ambition, first expressed when he was 17 years old, in 1923, to the Newhouses, to become the owner of the American News Company which last year did a business of $180,000,000. And all the news and excitement, and the comparisons with a character out of Horatio Alger hardly affect him, because he remembers his origin and is not unmindful of the weary years of growth, the plugging and pushing, the failures and the constant fear of falling off the ladder of life back into the poverty which killed his father at 37.

This father was what in my boyhood was known as a "customer peddler." This was an interesting character in every household. He provided credit in very small amounts, for all our parents needed a little credit. That is how we got furniture or an engagement ring, a piano which was the first sign of progress in those days, or even a suit of clothes. The customer peddler was paid a quarter or half a dollar a week on account and as he came every week to collect his money, he became a friend, a counselor, a mediator in family quarrels. Sometimes he even arranged marriages bringing the boys and girls together and working out their problems, then he sold them the engagement ring, the suite of furniture to set up a home, and even the wedding ring.

It was a way to earn a living. Many an important business in New York started when a customer peddler put his small savings into a store or a factory. And out of such little affairs came a Henry Garfinkle, now president and principal owner of the American News Company.

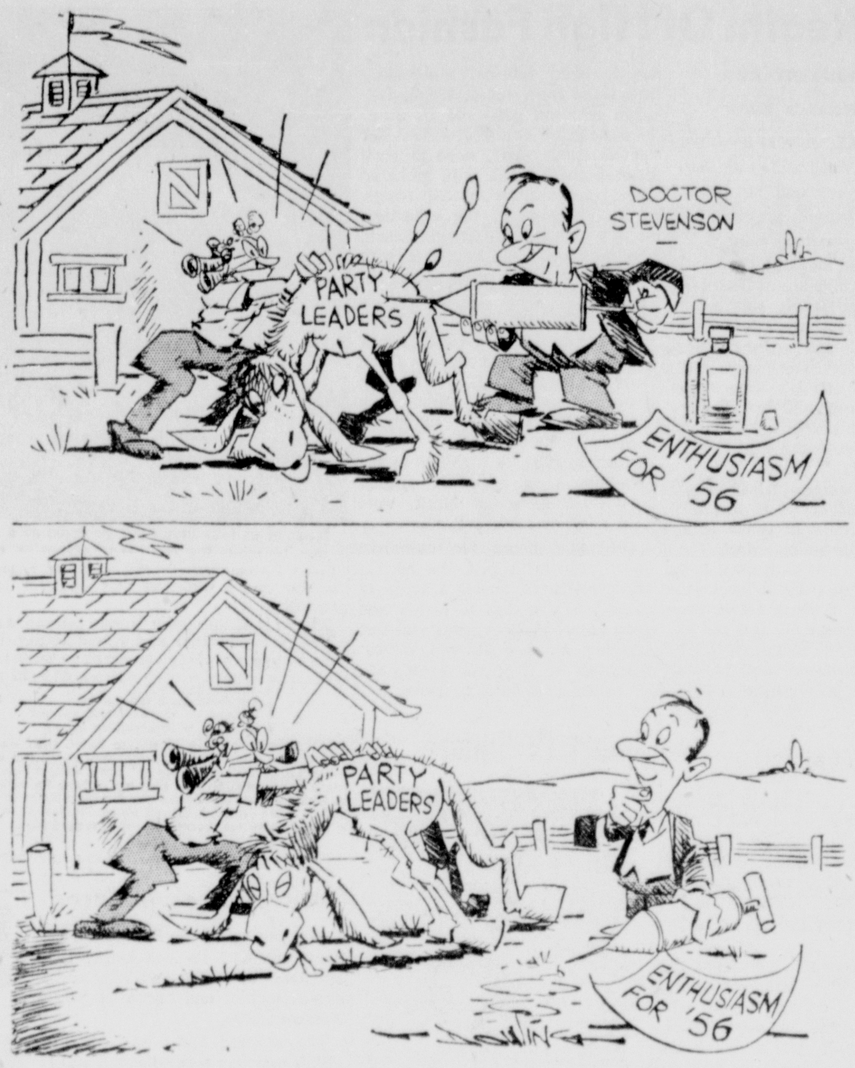
Those Shots Don't Seem To Be Taking Effect



Ike At First Feared Geneva Jinx; City Scene Of World Hope, Tragedy

By Drew Pearson

(Ed. Note — Drew Pearson has flown to Geneva to cover the Big Four meeting and today writes his first column on that important forthcoming event.)

GENEVA — Inside fact is that President Eisenhower at first didn't want the Big Four talks to be held in Geneva and argued against this city when the Russians first proposed it.

Ike is a bit superstitious, and to him Geneva was too closely identified with the Indo-China Conference which his Secretary of State ballyhooed as the "world's best hope," but which turned out to be one of this country's most crushing diplomatic defeats. To other diplomats, Geneva is a city which has watched some of the world's greatest tragedies and the world's greatest hopes.

It watched the birth of Woodrow Wilson's dream of a bright new and peaceful world.

And it watched Emperor Haile Selassie walk down from the League of Nations' rostrum, after his plea for helpless Ethiopia, a heavy-hearted, beaten man. It heard the silence that followed him, more eloquent than his plea—eloquent of the League's inability to challenge the swaggering might of Mussolini.

Dollar Diplomacy

It watched the ambassador of Adolf Hitler bluster out of the disarmament sessions when Franklin Roosevelt was making one last attempt to block rearming of Nazi Germany. And it watched Japanese Ambassador Yoshizawa insult the council by keeping it waiting a full hour during the Manchurian crisis and then saunter down the aisle, stogie at jaunty angle, to announce his usual alibi: "I am awaiting instructions from my government."

It also saw William Baldwin Shearer buttonhole newsmen and admirals as a $40,000 lobbyist for Bethlehem Steel, Newport News Ship and New York Ship to prevent naval disarmament.

It saw American and British oil companies warn the diplomats not to bar oil to Mussolini's navy—the only way to stop his invasion of helpless Ethiopia. And it saw the diplomats bow supinely to that warning. Dollars then were more important than peace.

And it watched the repeated conversations between that old battler for peace, Aristide Briand, and German delegates in an effort to patch up a partnership between those two age-old archenemies, France and Germany.

As these conversations failed, it also watched the huge mustachios of Aristide Briand droop lower and lower, as the League of Nations more and more sank to the point where it had only the noncontroversial task of preventing opium smuggling.

Eisenhower Is Stronger

But there is one big difference between Geneva's failures of the 1920-30s and the position President Eisenhower is in today.

The League of Nations in those days was operating without the United States. It was limping on one crutch, with the other crutch, the most powerful nation in the New World, aloof, suspicious, and isolated.

Even when Japan invaded Manchuria in 1931 in the forerunner of a general conquest of China and eventual world war, American isolationists shrank in horror when Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson instructed the American consul general in Geneva, Prentiss Gilbert, to attend the League Council merely as an observer.

Herbert Hoover was in the White House then, and so loud were isolationist shrieks from inside the Republican Party, that Hoover finally overruled his own Secretary of State and withdrew Gilbert as an observer. Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President, then ambassador to France and a good Chicago isolationist, acted as an aloof, playboy observer in Paris instead.

It almost broke Stimson's heart, and later he went to Geneva himself to fight the battle against Japan, the aggressor.

Eisenhower still has his problems inside the Republican Party, also with his own Administration advisers, as will be described in a subsequent column. But, by and large, the American people are overwhelmingly behind him in this or any other search for permanent peace. As far as American public opinion is concerned, Eisenhower at Geneva will play from strength.

No Easy Roads

When it comes to any quick and easy roads to peace, however, Ike might well study the Geneva experience of the Secretary of War who promoted him from lieutenant colonel to lieutenant general and helped assign him as commander in chief in Europe—the same Henry L. Stimson.

At Geneva during his efforts to head off World War II, Stimson knew that an era was dying. It was dying before men's eyes right at the conference table—the peace that he and other men had hoped to bring in 1918. He knew it was dying, but he refused to give up.

His room at the Villa Besinge looked down on an old garden sheltered by high trees in which roosted flocks of birds at night. And sometimes when he could not sleep and work dragged, Stimson stood at his window looking out upon the trees and the moon and the shadows they cast upon the garden, and remembered the days of World War I when he was an artillery captain in France.

Out among the poplars he saw again that line of men from the fields, the factories, going forward, and the line of men, wounded men, exhausted men, going back. A panorama of war lay before him on those nights; a panorama also of the years he had spent trying to prevent more war.

So Dwight D. Eisenhower, who took orders from Secretary of War Stimson during the war that Stimson was not able to prevent, will now look down from his villa at night and see the ghosts of Stimson, Aristide Briand, Woodrow Wilson, walking among the poplar trees, sitting among the shadows cast upon the garden, wondering, hoping, praying that he may succeed where they failed.

Big 4 Meeting Really Will Be 2 Conferences

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There are two Geneva conferences in the offing — one is artificial and the other is real.

The make-believe conference is a fanciful picture unfolded as a result of a world-wide buildup by the press and radio in London, Paris, Washington, Peiping and Moscow.

The real conference — the one that will actually happen — is far less spectacular. It is already announced that no decisions will be reached on controversial questions —only on procedures for future talks and studies.

The people of the world, therefore, are far ahead of the actualities of such a session of the heads of states. They expect far more than will be accomplished.

Probably the most significant thing that will come out of the real conference is a decision to hold another one — possibly in Canada or some other part of the world six months hence.

For, while the speculation in the press and among the so-called "informed sources" all over the world will continue to stimulate hope for a better turn of affairs as between the East and the West, it's going to be a long time before anything tangible will emerge that can be pointed to as a demonstration of a change in tensions.

If "relaxation of tension" has been the objective, it already has been attained. Millions of people in the West already feel that there has been a change — that peace is here or maybe just around the corner.

The realists happen to be in the minority and they have an annoying way of looking at facts just at the time when the wishful thinkers want to ignore or at least put aside unpleasant conjectures.

But a glance at all the dispatches from all over the world will reveal that the Soviet military mechanism has not relaxed and is working overtime to produce better jets and better bombs. Only in the press of the West is there a constant propaganda of denunciation of nuclear warfare. The Soviets haven't given the slightest indication that they plan to abandon either nuclear tests or the use of nuclear weapons in wartime.

There are, of course, many economic burdens which the Soviet government would like to have eased. The Four-Power Conference is naturally the place to look for such relief. If, as Senator Flanders of Vermont, Republican, so wisely pointed out in a recent speech, nuclear warfare can be banned, the armies of Red China and Soviet Russia will dominate Europe and Asia.

All the talk about a new security system of Europe which is to include Russia and her satellites is just window dressing. It hides the real facts which are that, as long as the East is lined up against the West with vast armies, the potentialities of another war are there. The sparring at the Four-Power Conference will be significant if only in revealing that back of the Soviets is a desire to frustrate if not abolish the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and render Germany impotent.

Back of the Moscow planning is military strategy — protection for the future and a weakening of the Western allies, who, it might be assumed by the Kremlin, will be foolish enough to let down their guard and cut armament expenditure without any further signs of good faith from the Russians than verbal pieties.

The theory that the four heads of state will sit down together and in all sincerity work out a program of peace is too fantastic to be accepted for the simple reason that it has not been preceded by any acts of good faith by the Communists. There is no compelling reason for them to make concessions of importance if they can maneuver the West into doing so.

Propaganda-wise the Soviets go into the Geneva Conference with many advantages. They have managed to scare the Western world with the fear that the next war will destroy civilization if H-bombs are used. Hence the logical thing, of course, is to get all nations to agree not to use them. That would make conventional arms and big armies dominant—and that means domination of Europe by Soviet Russia. It's a practical problem which the dreamers and those who keep thinking about the imaginary conference at Geneva do not face.

But President Eisenhower is a man who has spent most of his life as a soldier preparing for surprises from the enemy. He is not likely to be fooled. So the real conference will be a simple affair —making arrangements for more study by commissions and committees, more diplomatic conversation and another big conference six months hence to take stock of what will have happened in the meantime. It's a form of progress, to be sure, but it's a far cry from peace or disarmament.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Finally finished our coat-to-coat plebiscite on pay-as-you-squint television.

The Univackings of the survey were as impartial as the man who mixes succotash.

One-fourth of the people are willing to pay for special programs provided commercial blurbs were abolished. There are strings on everything except Tara's Harp.

The other three-fourths will not add sugar and cream to the tea that was dumped in Boston Harbor. They refuse to pay for any television except the instalments.

This writer is yes-and-no all depending on who threatened him last. He thinks he would pay extra to see Molotov going over Niagara Falls in a bird cage.

We can always go back to shadow-graphs on the walls. We used to make pretty good rabbits with ears. The last thing that moved in our parlor was the piano. And that was out.

He could make money inviting the neighbors over and charging 'em admission.

In the lull between stations he is ready and willing to pay for anything Walt Disney does.

Also The Long Voyage Home, The Devil and Daniel Webster, The Winslow Boy, Stage Coach, baseball and boxing. And a bit of Jimmy Durante doing the strutt-away.

And "Guided"

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The intelligence estimators have been sent into a quick huddle by a seemingly minor detail in the recent Soviet statement on Germany. In a passage concerning the horrors of modern war, there was a brief reference to the invention of "new, formerly non-existent weapons of mass destruction ... atomic, hydrogen, guided and others."

In this casual manner, the Kremlin has in effect declared that guided missiles which are "weapons of mass destruction" are now accomplished facts. And the Kremlin has further placed these guided missiles in the same grisly class as the A-and H-bombs.

The experts are not certain precisely what this may portend. But it is a fair bet that it means the Kremlin is well satisfied with the progress of its guided missile program. The bet is logical because Soviet guided missile development has been an all-out effort, both more intensive and larger in scale than the comparable American effort, ever since the end of the last war.

A deadly, unseen race is going on, in fact, to produce the first workable models of the true ultimate weapons — the inter-continental guided missile with atomic or hydrogen warhead. And in this race, while the Soviets are working all-out and have now begun to hint of their own success, the American motto is plainly "business as usual."

The prevailing Pentagon censorship is nowhere stricter than in this special field on which the fate and future of this country may quite probably depend. But anyone with the most trifling experience in such matters can see that there is little urgency in the American effort, just by taking a quick look at the way the effort is organized. The pattern of organization is a matter of common knowledge in the aircraft industry.

The effort is headed up under Brig. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever and his Western Division of the Air Research and Development Command. Gen. Schriever has a total staff of about 100 persons.

In addition, he has the consulting service of the Remo-Wool-Ridge Corporation, an extremely competent scientific group headed by the two former chief scientists of the Hughes Aircraft Company. Gen. Schiever's chief scientific adviser is the brilliant Atomic Energy Commissioner, Dr. John von-Neumann.

Such is the superstructure of the American effort to build long-range guided missiles. The actual missile projects are in the hands of primary contractors, who in turn employ swarms of subcontractors. Atlas, the projected intercontinental ballistic missile with a speed ten times that of sound, is a Corvair contract, for example. Navajo, the slower ram-jet missile of intercontinental range is a North American contract; and the still slower Snark is a Northrop Aviation Company contract.

The primary contractors by no means give all their time to these vast projects which have been confided to them. The Corvair company, for instance, is working on the F-102 fighter and the B-58 bomber, a new jet transport and a jet-powered flying boat, a seaplane fighter aircraft and the Terrier guided missile, in addition to having responsibility for Atlas. The subcontractors are similarly handling the needs of the long-range guided missile projects along with much other business.

The Pentagon maintains, meanwhile, that the long-range guided missile projects have highest priority. "Every dollar that is asked for is promptly made available." is the Pentagon theme song. But that is meaningless. Los Alamos, at the end of the war, had 8,000 people at work behind the barbed wire. In the long-range missile effort, the substitute for Los Alamos is a Brigadier General with a staff of 100, plus a rather small industrial company, plus a chief scientist who is giving this life-and-death job what time he can spare from his other duties as Atomic Energy Commissioner.

Building long-range missiles is a vastly more difficult job than building A-bombs. What is wanted to do the job, of course, is a Manhattan District type of organization, outside Pentagon channels, able to mobilize all needed scientific manpower, enjoying a commanding industrial priority, and above all directed by the sort of huge collective or synthetic superbrain that was the Los Alamos laboratory in war-time. But that kind of organization would upset the Pentagon's dominant budget balances by developing really massive expenditure requirements.

The people now involved in the long-range missile effort are all admirable and capable people. But the organization is wrong. The priorities are wrong. The Pentagon outlook is wrong (which is not surprising, since Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson originally regarded the whole effort as visionary nonsense.) And so the Soviets are being given a golden opportunity to win the guided missile race.

'Eating For Two' And Other Pregnancy Myths

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Deilen

Since the dawn of man, thousands of superstitions and misconceptions about pregnancy have developed and only in recent years have the majority fallen by the wayside. Those that remain persist because they sound logical.

"For every pregnancy a tooth" is a well known misconception. It may have been true before modern dentistry came into its own but loss of teeth in this age group ought to be blamed on neglect rather than on pregnancy. Women who take care of them need not lose a tooth while carrying a baby. Furthermore, the unborn child does not absorb calcium from mother's teeth because other sources of this mineral are more readily available.

"Eating for two" is another misbelief. The result will be to make mama fat. The fetus is a parasite and develops whether mother eats a lot or not. This was demonstrated repeatedly during famines associated with wars.

A balanced and adequate diet is needed, however, for a strong healthy foundation. Besides, babies weighing more than nine pounds at birth face more hazards than the six pounder.

Some women avoid paint during the prenatal period because years ago, the absorption of lead in such products was considered a factor in abortion. We now know that lead does not cause abortion. Furthermore, he danger of lead poisoning is almost nil when lead is used properly. If modern mothers-to-be avoid paint during this period it is because the odor produces nausea.

It also is well to remember that hanging curtains or holding on to a subway strap will not throw loops or tie knots in the umbilical cord. Nowadays, physicians do not recommend pregnancy as a cure for frigidity, malposition of the uterus, or painful menstruation.

There is no harm in taking a shower and shampoo a day or so after delivery. Breast feeding does not improve mother's appetite, cause large breasts, or increase the waistline. It does encourage the uterus to return to normal size. Another superstition is that drinking beer steps up the milk supply.

Many mothers still believe they should stay in bed for two to three weeks after the little one arrives. Most physicians disagree, provided there are no complications. They realize that when the patient is up and about soon after delivery, she has less bowel and bladder trouble and vein disturbances are less likely to develop.

EMOTIONAL RHEUMATISM

C. F. writes: What is psychogenic rheumatism?

REPLY

Pain in and about the joints and in the muscles and tendons without visible or laboratory evidence of arthritis. This disorder is most common in young and middle-aged adults.

CONGESTION OF NOSE

C. F. writes: Is vasomotor rhinitis another name for hay fever?

REPLY

Nasal congestion (vasomotor rhinitis) occurs in various conditions, including hay fever and the common cold. If it is on an allergic basis, the sufferer may be sensitive to dust, cosmetics, feathers, pollen or any of a long list of irritating substances. Thus his sneezing and sniffling is not on a seasonal basis as in hay fever. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on allergis, or vasomotor rhinitis.

TANNING LIGHT SKIN

N. W. writes: Can a man with very fair skin ever develop a suntan?

REPLY

It's difficult because the skin usually burns rather than browns. Gradual exposure may do it along with the use of a suntan preparation.

POSTURE STRAIN

P. F. writes: When I stand for a long time I feel a tight sensation in the back of my knees, thighs, and calves of the legs. Do you think I could have rheumatism?

REPLY

Your discomfort is more likely to result from strain than from rheumatism.

SCARED TO TRAVEL

Mrs. D. writes: I used to enjoy traveling but now I'm afraid. When we start out on a trip in the car I keep thinking of auto crashes and similar mishaps and am a nervous wreck by the time we have piled up our day's mileage. Have you any suggestions to help me?

REPLY

You have acquired a phobia that may require the services of a physician. Meanwhile fly or take a train. I hope your family and friends will be sympathetic and not tease you about your difficulty or force you to go riding with them.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Deilen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

Mr. Gordon was dreaming of a play with two characters and one set that would run for eight thousand consecutive performances. His plane was making a routine flight from New York to Chicago. Suddenly he looked up to see a parachutist drift past his window. "Care to join me?" hollered the parachutist.

"Think I'm nuts?" responded Mr. Gordon. "I'm staying right here."

"Have it your way," conceded the parachutist. "I'm your pilot."

Horseblanket Plaids Step Into Realm Of High Fashion

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—This is the year of the glorified blanket.

Horse blankets and bed blankets alike step out of the barn and the boudoir into the realm of high fashion under the guidance of such diversified designers as Tina Leser and Nelly De Grab.

Miss Leser is fascinated by the weightless fluff of cashmere blankets in bold king-size plaids, which she uses in sheath dresses and skirts complete with fringe. Colors are screaming yellow or red with bold black, and the effect is gay and dashing.

Mrs. De Grab uses horseblanket plaid for casual skirts aimed toward the high school and college set, also with telling effect.

This may be a dangerous trend, for how is Pop going to keep warm next winter if Mom starts wearing the blankets off the bed?

Miss Leser's collection of fall fashions, previewed for the visiting fashion press, blends with a lavish hand fabrics, embroidery and laces from India, China, Belgium and the good old U. S. A. in a dazzling array of color. Her fantail dance skirt, done in vivid printed sheer wool, with gathered back panel outlined by ball fringe, is a high point of the collection. So is a washable suede suit, which, she says, can be tossed in with the family wash and come out smiling.

The easy look is Harry Frechtel's theme for his distinguished group of suits and coats, which feature narrow shoulders, straight lines and an easy wasitline. His tunic ensembles with coordinated overblouses in tweeds and woolens are outstanding. A highlight of the collection is a group of elegant reefers in luxurious black wool with mink or sable collars.

Originala, noted for cashmere coats done with just the correct understatement, shows a group of coats that are tops in luxury and good taste, in cashmeres and fine woolens, as distinguished without trimming as they are when lined or collared in fabulous pelts.

Do You Know That...

Ice cream whipped to a froth with milk and flavoring makes a delightful and nutritious milk shake. It is enjoyed by young and old alike.

Many nutritious sandwiches can be made with creamy cottage cheese. Mix cottage cheese with green onions, radishes, celery, green pepper, pickle relish or dried fruit. Serve on buttered slices of whole wheat bread with a little salad dressing.

Cream soups made with fresh vegetables are appetizing and contain important milk nutrients. A soup of this kind makes an ideal accompaniment for a light summer salad.

Fresh vegetables are better than ever when served with butter. Add parsley, chives, mushrooms or your favorite herbs to butter and use as a souce with vegetables. Excellent flavor and variety make the vegetables more tempting.

Famous Liver

The reputation of liver, one of the most healthful of foods, now has been well established. Many homemakers serve their families this iron and B vitamin rich meat once a week.

It's a good idea to offer liver in a variety of ways—liver loaf, liver patties, braised liver with vegetables, in addition to the usual pan-fried liver.

Liver and Onion Patties

1 pound beef or pork liver; 1 medium onion; 10 crackers (2 by 2 inches); 2 eggs; 2 tablespoons milk; 1 teaspoon salt; Lard.

Cover liver with boiling water and let stand 10 minutes. Remove skin and veins from liver and put through meat grinder (fine grind) with onion and crackers. Add slightly beaten eggs, milk and salt. Drop by spoonfuls into a few tablespoons hot lard; flatten with a spatula and fry each side until brown and crisp. 4 servings.

Nearly one half of the public elementary schools in the U.S. were still one-room, one-teacher schools in 1950, although they had an enrollment of only five per cent of the pupils.

Toasty Cheese Loaf

Most of us take bread for granted as a necessary part of a meal, but it can be made the center of attention with very little effort. Sharp Cheese Spread transforms a loaf of French bread into a real appetite tempter and a different and unusual flavor accent with salad or a main dish.

The base of the Sharp Cheese Spread is a bar of Good Luck margarine which has fine flavor and spreadability. Make the spread up ahead of time to use whenever you want to perk up a meal with a special taste treat. It's a good way to use up day-old rolls, too.

1 bar Good Luck margarine
1 5-ounce jar sharp cheese spread
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 loaves French bread
Poppy Seed (optional)

Let margarine soften in mixing bowl, then cream thoroughly with mixing spoon. Add cheese spread and Worcestershire sauce and cream until well blended. Cut French bread diagonally into slices ¾" thick, almost to bottom. Spread cheese mixture generously between slices and over top of loaf. Sprinkle with poppy seed, if desired. Place on baking sheet and bake in moderately hot oven (375°F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Serve hot, letting those served break off pieces. Makes 12 to 16 servings. If only 1 loaf of bread is used, halve the amounts of other ingredients.

Carrots simmered gently in apple juice develop a delicate hint of apple flavor . . . delicious for a summer meal with pan-broiled meat patties.

The temple of Diana, one of the seven wonders of the world, was built at Ephesus in Asia Minor. It was made of Parian marble. Diana was the virgin goddess of hunting in Roman mythology.

Storing Hams and Bacon

Are you up on the fine points of meat storage? Do you know, for instance, how long you can keep hams, picnics and bacon in your refrigerator?

The smoked hams and picnics which you buy today have a mild cure and always must be refrigerated. They can't be handled like the old-fashioned, heavily cured hams. Furthermore, smoked hams and picnics should be used within a week to ten days after purchase. They may be frozen, but for only short periods of time—preferably no longer than 60 days. Ham leftovers, too, should be stored in the refrigerator for only a short time.

To be at its flavor-best, sliced bacon should be kept in the refrigerator for only about a week. As the flavor of bacon deteriorates when frozen, freezing sliced bacon is not recommended.

Apple Sauce-Stuffed Frankfurters

For a warm weather, outdoor supper party you couldn't choose a handsomer main dish than this platter of plump, stuffed frankfurters rolled in bacon strips. Fixed this way, frankfurters look imposing and festive . . . yet are easy to prepare.

Even more important, they have fine flavor and heartiness. The stuffing is unusual. The dish calls for canned apple sauce for high zest, and seasoned bread crumbs for body. The apple sauce also keeps the frankfurters juicy and succulent while the bacon strips curl crisp around them in the broiling.

With these frankfurters you might offer coleslaw in chilled tomato shells, together with big buns, split, buttered and heated.

All told, this is a supper that provides good honest fare . . . but fare perked up to tempt summer appetites. And it's a supper that's both simple to prepare and inexpensive.

Apple Sauce-Stuffed Frankfurters

1 cup soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 cup canned apple sauce
8 frankfurters
8 bacon slices

Combine bread crumbs, butter or margarine and poultry seasoning. Cook apple sauce, stirring occasionally, until most of the water has evaporated (7 minutes). Combine crumb mixture and apple sauce. Split frankfurters almost through to bottom, lengthwise. Fill with apple sauce mixture. Wrap 1 slice bacon around each frankfurter; fasten with tooth picks. Broil 8 minutes. Yields 4 servings.

Hints To The Bride

Calling all new brides — or brides-to-be — to heed a few words of culinary advice. It's about meat cookery.

The realm of cookery in which the new bride should excel is in the preparation of meats. No groom will be satisfied for long with poorly cooked meats.

Preparing meats properly is simply a matter of following a few basic rules. One of these is that chops of various kinds must be prepared in different ways. Lamb chops, for instance, may be broiled, while pork and veal chops should be cooked by braising. Braising means first to brown the meat in a little hot fat in a heavy skillet; then to season, add a small amount of liquid, cover the pan and finish cooking until tender.

New husbands are fond of tender, broiled steaks, but not all steaks are suitable for broiling. Round steak, for example, is a beef cut which is not tender enough to be broiled. This popular cut, when braised in tomato juice or bouillon, makes the tenderest of meat dishes.

Carving Made Easy

Every man is a dramatist at heart and it's natural for the head of the house to enjoy being in the limelight occasionally. One time a man can shine is when he's called upon to perform the job of carving the dinner roast.

Of course, the art of carving doesn't come overnight; it requires a little basic know-how and some practice. Here are some ways to help make carving easier:

1. Ask the meat man to loosen the backbone of a pork loin roast or a rib roast of beef. (These are left on the roast during cooking but removed in the kitchen before bringing the roast to the table.) When carving a pork loin roast, cut between the ribs to make chop-size servings.

2. Let the roast cool for 15 minutes before starting to carve. This "sets" the juices and makes carving easier.

3. When carving T-bone or porterhouse steaks, give each person a piece of tenderloin, a piece of larger muscle and a piece of the "tail."

Tea leaves will give up all their flavor and caffein after three minutes of brewing. Time yourself so as not to let the tea stand too long or too short a time for proper brewing.

Frankfurter Spanish Rice

1 pound frankfurters; ½ cup chopped green pepper; ½ cup chopped onion; 2½ cups tomatoes (No. 2 can); 1¼ teaspoons salt; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1 clove garlic, chopped; 1 bay leaf; 3 whole cloves; 3 cups cooked rice (1 cup uncooked).

Cook green pepper and onion in a little hot fat until soft. Add remaining ingredients, except rice and frankfurters. Simmer, uncovered, 15 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Add rice and half of the frankfurters, sliced. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Brown remaining whole frankfurters in a little hot fat. Serve with Spanish rice. 6 servings.

Two Meals From Beef Steak Easy For Bride

Whether or not cooking is a bewildering new experience, ideas for easy-to-prepare meat dishes are always welcome. This one makes the most of an economical cut of meat, beef arm or blade steak. One of these steaks, cut ¾ to 1 inch thick, may be selected, says meat expert Reba Staggs. Then the steak can be divided in half for two meals, with each portion large enough for two servings.

Braising is the cooking method which brings out maximum flavor and tenderness in these steaks. Delicious, plain braised steak may be served for one of the meals. The first half of the steak is browned slowly on both sides in 2 to 3 tablespoons of lard or drippings and seasoned with salt and pepper. Then ¼ cup of water is added, the utensil is covered tightly and the meat is cooked slowly until it is tender, about 45 minutes to 1 hour.

The method for cooking the remaining portion of the steak is the same, but with a few additions, it's an entirely different dish — Swiss steak! The seasonings, 1 teaspoon of salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper are added to ¼ cup of flour and the meat is dredged in it. Then the steak is browned in 2 to 3 tablespoons of lard or drippings. Instead of water, 1 cup of cooked or canned tomatoes and 1 sliced medium-size onion are added. The utensil is covered tightly and the meat is cooked slowly until it is tender, about 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Refreshing to serve as dessert on a warm day—and it's quick and easy, too: Chilled canned apple slices liberally sprinkled with cinnamon-sugar. Serve with light cream, if you wish. Pass the cookies.

Let your Lazy Susan make a simple dessert both dramatic and easy to serve. A sweet rice dessert (molded or not) is placed in the middle of a Lazy Susan circled by dishes of fresh coconut, candied fruits, crushed peppermint candies, chocolate sauce, thawed frozen strawberries, peach preserves or any other topping you have handy.

If you don't have a Lazy Susan, put the toppings in separate dishes — arranged around the sweet rice. What a picture it makes! What delicious eating, too!

INGREDIENTS:

- 4 cups milk
- 1 cup uncooked white rice
- ½ cup beet or cane sugar
- ½ pint (1 cup) whipping cream, chilled
- ¼ cup beet or cane sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

TOPPINGS OF YOUR CHOICE

- Chocolate sauce, hot if desired
- Peppermint candy, crushed
- Toasted coconut
- Thawed frozen strawberries or other berries
- Peach preserves
- Butterscotch sauce, hot if desired
- Candied fruits
- Peanuts, pecans or other nuts

METHOD: Put the milk and rice in a 2-quart saucepan. Place over a high heat. When bubbles appear around the edge, stir well. Turn heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 45 minutes. Stir several times during the cooking. Remove from the heat and stir in the ½ cup sugar. Cool. Cover and chill in the refrigerator. Whip the cream until stiff. Fold in the ¼ cup sugar and vanilla. Stir the chilled rice into the whipped cream. This dessert is especially attractive if this mixture is molded. Just press rice into a fancy mold. Cover and store in the refrigerator until firm.

To serve, unmold rice on a plate or on the center part of a Lazy Susan. Arrange the chocolate sauce, peppermint candy, toasted coconut, frozen strawberries, peach preserves, candied fruit or any other toppings in the dishes around the molded sweet rice.

Let the family make their own sundae with their favorite toppings or combinations.

This recipe makes 10 servings.

Easy Evening Snacks

Surprise your evening guests with these good tasting, open-face sandwiches of liver sausage and cheese.

Evening Snacks

½ pound liver sausage ½ cup finely chopped celery; 2 tablespoons chili sauce; ¾ cup grated cheddar cheese; 6 slices Vienna or rye bread, toasted.

Mash liver sausage and combine with celery and chili sauce. Spread on toast and place on baking sheet. Sprinkle with cheese and broil until cheese is lightly browned. 6 servings.

Pizza Special

There's lots of interest in Italian cookery today, especially in the tasty pizza. Here's a variation of the pizza theme in which the filling is baked in a meat crust.

Pizza Hamburger Pie

1 pound ground beef; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 1 cup well-drained canned tomatoes ½ cup shredded sharp cheese; 2 tablespoons chopped parsley; ¼ teaspoon dried basil; 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion.

Mix ground beef with salt and pepper. Pat out in a 9-inch pie pan. Spread tomatoes over meat and sprinkle with remaining ingredients. Bake in a 375°F. oven for about 20 minutes. Cut in wedges to serve.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Rice is one of the few foods that don't change flavor when reheated. Leftover rice may be added to boiling salted water, cooked for five minutes, then drained and allowed to dry and fluff. Or it may be reheated in the oven by adding a little water to the pan, covering and heating until the grains are thoroughly hot.

Backyard Supper

Eating supper in the backyard appeals to everyone on a warm evening. Out-of-door suppers are easy to serve when the food is carried from the kitchen to the backyard table. For the main course select a hearty hot dish such as this frankfurter and rice combination.

Variety With Veal, Lamb

No doubt you serve beef and pork to your family most of the time, but how often do you serve them lamb or veal? These two delicately flavored meats make a nice change in the menu.

As lamb is a tender meat, most cuts are suitable for roasting and broiling. Shoulder roast, rib roast (crown) and leg of lamb all may be roasted. Breast of lamb, either stuffed or rolled, usually is braised (pot roasted). Lamb chops, restaurant specialties which are favorites at home, too, may be broiled or pan-boiled.

Veal, a lean meat, should not be broiled. Veal chops, steaks and cutlets are best when prepared by braising (cooked in a covered skillet). As veal roasts lack fat, they should be covered with thin strips of salt pork or bacon before roasting. Veal roasts often are cooked as pot roasts, with herbs added.

Summer Salad Loaf In Three Layers

This is an easy-to-make salad loaf patterned after the colorful sandwich loaf you've probably made for parties. This salad loaf is low in cost, colorful to see and quite tasty. You'll want to serve it as the highlight of a quick "out-of-the-refrigerator" meal.

Ingredients For Ham Salad Layer:
(Or use your favorite ham salad recipe)
½ pound cooked ham (1½ cups ground ham)
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard
5 tablespoons mayonnaise (¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon)
Dash of hot sauce

Cottage Cheese Frosting
1 lb. cream style or homogenized cottage cheese
1 tablespoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
Green food coloring

Ingredients For Rice Layer:
⅔ cup uncooked white rice
1⅓ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped olives
5 tablespoons mayonnaise
Dash of Hot sauce

Method: Grind ham. Add the pickle, egg, celery, mustard, mayonnaise and Hot sauce, to the ham. Mix thoroughly. Store in the refrigerator until loaf is to be assembled. Make the cottage cheese frosting by mixing together the cottage cheese, onion and salt. Mash the cottage cheese with a fork until it is smooth and somewhat creamy. Tint to the desired shade of green. Store in the refrigerator until the loaf is to be iced.

To make the rice layer, put the rice, water and salt in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove saucepan from the heat but leave lid on 10 minutes. Add the olives, mayonnaise and Hot sauce to the hot rice. Quickly mix and place the rice mixture in a well greased loaf plan about 8" x 4". Firmly press into the pan. The rice layer will hold together only if the rice is pressed into the pan while still hot. Place some of the ham salad on top of the hot rice and press firmly. Add the remaining ham salad and press firmly. Immediately place a plate or platter over the loaf pan and invert plate and pan together, to unmold. Ice with the tinted cottage cheese. It may be necessary to stir the cold cottage cheese mixture with a fork until it is again creamy. Cover the loaf with aluminum foil or waxed paper and chill for about four hours.

To serve, place slices of the salad loaf on salad greens. Serve with mayonnaise or salad dressing, if desired.

This recipe makes 15 slices, 1½" wide.

Ready-To-Serve Meats Spark Summer Menus

The array of ready-to-serve meats displayed at your meat dealer's counter will suggest enough menu ideas to last you for many summers. There's variety galore spiced luncheon meat, minced ham, veal loaf, meat loaf, olive loaf, jellied tongue and jellied corned beef, to name a few.

Ready-to-serve meats have been cooked or baked and are ready to be served cold or hot in many combinations. According to home economist Reba Staggs, they may be deliciously adapted to salads. Fruited Luncheon Meat Salad is one recipe which will give you ideas for more such combinations. For instance, you could cut the meat into julienne strips instead of cubes.

Fruited Luncheon Meat Salad
1 pound spiced luncheon meat, cubed
1 cup pineapple cubes
½ cup red grapes, cut in half and seeded
½ cup diced celery
⅓ cup pecan pieces
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons pineapple juice
4 to 6 lettuce cups

Mix together meat cubes, pineapple cubes, grapes, celery and pecans. Combine mayonnaise and pineapple juice, add to meat mixture. Toss lightly. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups. 4 to 6 servings.

LAUNDRY TIPS

There's a lot being said — and done — these days about bathroom laundry combinations. What is more convenient than to have your washer and dryer where your soiled clothes and linens are stored between washings? When it comes to laundering shower curtains, it's only a matter of changing tubs. And that is what this column is about . . .

During the summer when your shower is working overtime keeping the family cool, plastic shower curtains are apt to lose their color and crispness. According to Marcia Mead, home service director for Whirlpool Corporation, these curtains can be successfully laundered and softened in an automatic washer. Fill washer tub with warm water and add twice the amount of water softener you usually use to condition the water. Set the timer for three minutes and complete cycle automatically. That's all there is to it!

Plastic is not absorbent so curtains may be hung immediately after they are removed from spin-dry cycle of washer. If you prefer, curtains may be dried in an automatic dryer providing temperature is under 120°. The delicate fabrics cycle of the Imperial electric dryer is perfect for this.

An easy patio party punch, and a festive looking one, is made by combining 1½ quarts of apple juice with 1 quart of gingerale, both thoroughly chilled. Pour over ice cubes and garnish the bowl with lemon and lime slices and maraschino cherries. This quantity is enough for 10-12 servings.

Kansas, the "Sunflower State," lies in the exact geographical center of the United States.

Market Posts Slight Gain During Irregular Session

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP) — The stock market went through an irregular session today but managed enough late improvement to close slightly higher.

It was one of the slowest days of the year. Only 1,980,000 shares changed hands. There have been only a few sessions this year with less business. Yesterday's total was 2,360,000.

Today the market opened slightly lower and then improved, the same pattern it followed the previous day. Thereafter it fell into a mixed state until shortly before the close when enough price improvement appeared to bring the entire list up a bit.

Better acting divisions included steels, mail order issues, coppers, selected chemicals—including Du Pont which was up 6 points at 230½—railroads and movie issues. The motors were neglected, aircrafts mixed, airlines lower, building materials lower, and utilities lower.

Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton was the day's most active issue up 1⅜ at 14⅜ on volume of 40,100 shares.

It was followed by Sperry Rand up ⅛ at 26½, American Broadcasting Paramount up 2 at 31, Electric Auto Lite up 1¾ at 46¼, and U. S. Steel up ¼ at 53⅜.

Coal Paradox Confronts Eden

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—Britain is exporting about a million tons of coal a month. It is importing a million tons of coal a month, too.

That is one of the worst paradoxes Prime Minister Eden's government confronts. With the country prosperous, many miners have gone to easier jobs in factories. "Our main difficulty, our continuing difficulty, is manpower," says the National Coal Board.

The government, through this board, operates all British mines. The industry has run up a debt equivalent to 48 million dollars since it was nationalized by the Labor government in 1947. Part of this is due to the fact the coal board loses $5 or $6 on every ton of coal it imports from the United States, France, Germany or Belgium.

At the same time, it is exporting coal in order to hang onto traditional markets for high class British steam coal.

This country burned 230 million tons last year, 30 millions more than prewar. And the number of miners steadily goes down.

Many of the state-owned electrical plants are switching to fuel oil. The long hope is atomic power.

Saving Worth $500

WESTHAMPTON BEACH, N.Y., July 14 (AP) — A civilian electrician has been awarded $500 for devising a simplified method for checking generating systems on Air Force planes.

The Suffolk County Air Force Base gave the money to James P. Horton, 35. The base said it already has saved $65,000 in the year it has used the method.

Formerly, the generating systems had to be taken out of the planes and sent to Kelly Field, Tex., for testing.

Now they can be checked at the home base in less than an hour.

Birth Rate Oddity

LONDON, July 14 (AP) — Chelsea, London's Greenwich Village, is pondering an oddity about its birth rate.

In 1952, according to the Public Health Department, 787 babies were born in the section. In 1953, the total was 787 again. In 1954—787 again.

"The only possible explanation is that it's a coincidence," a department official said.

N.Y. Eggs And Butter

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—(USDA): Eggs weak today. Receipts 20,426.

Nearby: Whites: Top quality (40-50 lbs) 44½-46½; mediums 37-38; smalls 29-29½.

Butter steady receipts 315,196. Prices unchanged.

SELECTED TO SERVE as security troops, these Swiss soldiers from Infantry Regiment 26 will be on guard duty at the Big Four "summit" talks in Geneva. Here they are shown reporting to Zurich headquarters for instructions in their future duties. (International)

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 (INS) — Robert Stack, whose stock is rising as fast as General Motors, goes to RKO to star in "Great Day in the Morning," the technicolor, superscope and all the other "scopes" biggie for Edmund Grainger.

An original by Robert Hardy Andrews, "Great Day in the Morning" is a pre-Civil War story giving Bob a role with distinct Rhett Butler shadings. He reports at RKO as soon as he finishes "Good Morning, Miss Dove" with Jennifer Jones.

Judy Lewis, 19-year-old daughter of Loretta Young, is a happy girl. Her mother has finally given in and given her blessing to pretty Judy's career, something the girl has wanted for a long, long time.

Loretta wasn't in favor of it at first, but Judy — on her own — joined the player's ring and rehearsed with the "pros" who were friends of the family.

Judy's really good, and when Loretta realized how serious she is, she finally gave her permission for her daughter to sign with Agent Meyer Mishkin.

Ann Sothern was a member of a wedding party in Las Vegas all right, but hold on — it wasn't her own to Bill Andrew.

Immediately after the opening of Ann's act with the Five Escorts at the New Frontier, the whole troupe adjourned to the office of a justice of the peace to witness the nuptials of Bert Henderson (one of the Five Escorts) and pretty dancer Wendy Bartlett.

Hollywood in shorts:

The engagement of Joan Davis and Palm Springs Councilman Jerry Nathanson is off, over and finis. And the torch he's carrying is lighting up the desert skies.

Marguerite Piazza sings at the Andrew Mellon party July 19 which will be the social event of the season in Pittsburgh. Following this she makes a quick trip to Hollywood before going to Rome to discuss filming "The Secrets of Suzanne."

Dick Haymes wound up his Las Vegas stint at the Dunes doing a "laugh clown, laugh" bit. Not because he's unhappy — but a wisdom tooth was killing him. He and Rita and the children planed home Wednesday.

If Gene Tierney is interested — and she doesn't appear too interested in Hollywood these days — Richard Widmark would love her as his co-star in "Run for the Sun."

The honeymoon of Clark Gable and Kay is about to be interrupted by a call from 20th for added scenes on "The Tall Men."

That's all today.

Tribe Rallies In 8th To Cop Series Opener

Rosen's Homer Ties Score; Three Singles Net Deciding Tally

CLEVELAND, July 14 (AP) — Al Rosen and Larry Doby belted home runs tonight as the Cleveland Indians came from behind and defeated New York 5-4. The loss cut the Yankees American League lead to four games.

Rosen, leading off in the eighth inning, tied the score with his 12th round trip of the year. Doby's blow, his 14th of the season, came with none on in the third.

Singles by Hal Naragon, Ray Narleski and Al Smith produced the winning run in the eighth.

Bob Lemon singled in the third, took second on an error, third on an out and scored the Tribe's first run on a fly by Bobby Avila.

Avila doubled home Jim Hegan, who walked in the fifth and advanced on a single by Smith.

A walk, a hit batter and Gil McDougald's single brought home a Yankee run in the second inning. Irv Noren's double and singles by Billy Hunter and Joe Collins produced two Yankee runs in the third.

Buhl Of Braves Tames Phils, 7-1

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 (AP) — Bob Buhl pieced out five hits—one a ninth inning homer by Andy Seminick—tonight as the Milwaukee Braves whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-1. Homers by Bobby Thomson and Hank Aaron, plus a two-run single by Andy Pafko, did the bulk of the Milwaukee damage.

Buhl, whose record now stands at 7-7, was more than the Phillies could handle. He fanned 12 and walked four.

Thomson hit his ninth homer of the season with none on in the second. Aaron's came with the bases empty in the sixth. It was Hank's 18th.

Herm Wehmeier went the first five innings and was charged with his seventh loss against six wins.

Giants' Gomez Beats Cubs, 3-2

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP) — The New York Giants, who only once this season had stolen as many as two bases in one game, swiped four tonight against Chicago, setting up two big runs with two of the thefts in a 3-2 triumph over the Cubs.

The Giants, battling to overhaul the third place Bruins, sewed it up in the third after Don Mueller had led off a two-run second inning with his sixth home run of the season.

Ruben Gomez was the winner, blanking the Cubs until the sixth when Jim King socked his ninth homer with a man on base. It was Ruben's seventh triumph against four defeats.

Brooks Suffer 3rd Straight Loss, 6-1

BROOKLYN, July 14 (AP)—Stan Musial, hero of Tuesday's All-Star game, and Wally Moon smacked home runs and rookie Larry Jackson tossed four-hit ball tonight as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Brooklyn Dodgers 6-1. It was the third straight defeat for the National League leaders.

Musial, who broke up the All-Star game with his home run in the 12th inning, got the Cards rolling with his 20th homer of the year to lead off the fourth inning. Just as in Tuesday's classic, it was his lone hit of the game.

The Cards, who peppered loser Johnny Podres and three relievers for 11 hits, wrapped it up with two runs in the sixth, two more in the seventh and one in the eighth.

Henry W. Herman, 59, Dies Of Heart Attack

FREDERICK, Md., July 14 (AP)—Henry William Herman, sports editor of the Frederick Post since March, 1942, died of a heart attack tonight. He was 59.

The veteran newsman was stricken shortly after returning to work from dinner about 8 p.m. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, where he died less than an hour later.

A native of Baltimore, he was the son of the late John G. and Ella May Herman and had been active in newspaper work since youth. His service dated back to his graduation from Baltimore City College, when he joined The Baltimore Sun as a copy boy.

Upon his death, besides being sports editor of the Post, he was a Frederick correspondent for The Associated Press.

He served in France during World War I, when he became a casualty of an enemy gas attack. Upon his discharge in 1919, he went to Arizona and resided in Tucson for several years before taking a United Press assignment in Mexico.

Herman moved to Frederick in 1941, joining the Post staff and becoming active in Maryland affairs of the American Legion, Amvets, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the 29th Division Assn. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Agnes Shankle Herman and two sons by a previous marriage, Kenneth and Jack Herman, who reside in Arizona; and two sisters, Mrs. Walton V. Cowman and Miss M. Rosella Herman, both of Baltimore.

Boston, Detroit Split Twin Bill

DETROIT, July 14 (AP)—Boston's brash Red Sox, baseball's hottest team before the All-Star break, opened a 13-game tour of the West tonight and split a twi-night doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers.

After drawing a 6-0 blank in the first game, the Red Sox snapped back for a 7-3 nightcap victory, with successive seventh-inning home runs by Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen nailing the decision.

The even split gave Boston 10 victories in its last 12 games and 29 out of 36.

A crowd of 44,676 saw rookie Frank Lary chill the Red Sox in the opener, scattering six hits while pitching his first major league shutout. Given a 5-0 lead in the first inning, Lary coasted to his eighth victory against 10 losses. He retired Williams four straight times.

Orioles Get Bill Wight For Evers

Hoot 63rd Player To Leave Baltimore

KANSAS CITY, July 14 (AP)—Peddling Paul Richards today spun the 63rd man through his revolving door in the American League cellar.

He's bought, sold, traded, optioned or released that many baseball players since he took the Baltimore Orioles into training camp last Spring.

No. 63 was the veteran outfielder Hoot Evers, sent to Cleveland today in a waiver deal that brought relief pitcher Bill Wight to the Orioles from the Indians.

Only four men who played for Baltimore last year, the first season after transfer of the St. Louis Browns franchise to Maryland, were still with the club when it put in here today for a twi-night double header with the Kansas City A's.

Of the 45 men listed on the spring training roster March 1, only 11 still are around.

Richards, who became both field manager and general manager of the Orioles between the 1954 and 1955 seasons, has complete responsibility for player deals by virtue of his two jobs.

The "endurable four from '54" are first basemen Eddie Waitkus and outfielders Gil Coan, Cal Abrams and Chuck Diering, all of whom were acquired just before or during the 1954 season. Waitkus has been on the disabled list for a month.

Even as transaction No. 63 went into the books today there were signs Richards would keep the mill grinding.

Fred Colaw, who worked 5⅓ innings, was charged with the defeat, the sixth in a row for Grantsville Post.

Crosley Field Is Homer Haven Of Majors

125 Recorded There; K. C. Leads American

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—Cincinnati's Crosley Field and Kansas City's Municipal Stadium point up a moral for ball club owners: If you have a fence that's an inviting target for home run hitters, be sure you have someone who can hit over it.

The right field barrier at Crosley Field has become the most inviting target in the majors since the distance was shortened 20 feet two years ago. So far this season 125 homers have been hit in the Redlegs' home park.

Displaces Ebbets Field

Last year the Cincinnati park displaced Brooklyn's Ebbets Field as the haven for home run hitters when 199 homers were hit there. Brooklyn still is in the running with 106 this year.

The new Kansas City park holds a similar position in the American League. The A's ball yard has been the scene of 107 homers, five more than have been hit at Boston's Fen-

24 Hit In Baltimore

The toughest parks to hit home runs in have been Baltimore's Memorial Stadium and Griffith Stadium, Washington, in the American League and Pittsburgh's Forbes Field in the National. Only 24 homers have been hit in Baltimore with Orioles players connecting for eight. Batsmen in Griffith Stadium have found the range for 28 homers and 55 have been clubbed in Forbes Field.

way Park. The records, compiled by the Associated Press, include games of last Sunday. The Red Sox' field topped the American League with 139 in 1954.

But the figures show that the Redlegs, paced by Ted Kluszewski, have been able to take good advantage of the short field. They have accounted for 64 of the 125 homers in their park while the opposition has belted 61. Kluszewski, the majors' home run leader, has walloped 16 of his 29 homers in his home park.

Raises Thoroughbred

Foster-mothers among Thoroughbreds are not uncommon but Dr. Lew O. Llewellyn, of the Department of Large Animal Surgery and Medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in a letter to The Blood-Horse, tells of a Thoroughbred filly now being raised by a small Jersey cow.

The Thoroughbred, a filly by *Quibu—Ariel Bird, is now at Fred Harper's farm at Montgomery Alabama. Still unweaned she now stands nearly 18 inches taller than the cow, who is also raising an orphan lamb. The strange trio are turned out together and are inseparable, Dr. Llewellyn reports.

Basilio To Appear In Non-Title Bout

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio of Canastota, N.Y., will make his first start since winning the title when he meets Italy's Italo Scortichini in a non-title 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden, Aug. 10, matchmaker Billy Brown said today.

The 28-year-old upstater wrested the crown from Tony DeMarco via a 12th round technical knockout in Syracuse, N.Y., June 10.

This will be the third clash between Basilio and the stocky Italian middleweight. They fought a draw in Miami, Jan. 16, 1954. Four months later Basilio won a decision at Syracuse.

Ez Charles Agrees To Fight Jackson

SYRACUSE, N.Y., July 14 (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, victor by a narrow margin over Paul Andrews last night, has agreed to meet Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson of New York at the War Memorial Auditorium, Aug. 3, Promoter Norm Rothschild said today.

The show will be co-promoted by the International Boxing Club. The 10-rounder will be broadcast and telecast by the ABC networks.

Charles, 34-year-old Cincinnati fighter, now is ranked sixth among the heavyweight contenders. Jackson, 23, is the No. 4 man.

Contract Bridge

MISUSING THE DOUBLE

SOME experts (to say nothing of lesser players) try to use the takeout double of a suit-bid as an all-inclusive device, at times making this call on a fairly good hand, at other times making it on a "powerhouse."

The term "try to use" is chosen advisedly, because the fact is that their results are not uniformly successful. Observe the very inexpert performance of the supposed experts in the East-West positions below:

South dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 7 3 2 ♥ 4 ♦ J 10 6 3 2 ♣ 10 8 7 3
♠ K Q J 9 6 ♥ — ♦ A K 8 5 ♣ K Q 9 4	N W E S	♠ 10 8 5 4 ♥ Q 9 8 7 5 ♦ 9 ♣ A J 6
	♠ A ♥ A K J 10 6 3 2 ♦ Q 7 4 ♣ 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dble.	Pass	Pass
Pass

South had no pretentions to being an expert, and so his triumph was all the greater when he brought home the doubled one-heart contract and scored (with his honors) 210 points, and it then became clear that the opponents had an ironclad slam at spades!

It is super-evident that East-West, however much or little they may have deserved their reputations, were far off-stride in this case. Actually, they were just about equally maladroit.

West's takeout double of one heart was wholly inadequate—his hand-pattern and honor strength clearly justified a two-heart cue bid.

East made an equally bad decision when he passed for a penalty. His mere five-card length in hearts was not impressive; he might well take only one trump trick against the enemy, and even if he won two tricks in hearts and the ace of clubs, West would have to deliver a vast number of tricks if the contract was to be defeated substantially. Particularly with four cards in the other major suit, East should have felt that there was a fair prospect of game at spades, and in any case a response of one spade was wiser than the pass.

Hurray For The Actors

The condemnation of AWARE by a vote of almost two to one by the actor's union of radio and television is a faint and welcome light in the sky. Just possibly this evil nonsense of blacklisting is on the way out.

It was a light vote—and there was a reason for this. Many actors are political idiots and they simply didn't understand what the referendum was about. Many others were afraid that it was not a secret ballot (which it was) and that they would be blacklisted if they voted the wrong way—so they didn't vote at all. It's my guess that if the misunderstanding and the fears had been cleared away the vote would have been closer to five to one against AWARE.

AWARE, a group of private vigilantes who have tried to determine who shall or shall not work on the air, met defeat with a statement that is wonderfully amusing. ". . . the union is now on record as demanding free speech and association for fronters while denying those right to others," said Godfrey P. Schmidt, a lawyer who is president of AWARE.

Free speech is a marvelous issue for AWARE because free speech is the one thing AWARE couldn't stand up against—the moment anyone had the courage to use it. The blacklists which AWARE foments are shrouded in silence. Every advertising agency, every network, that uses a blacklist is afraid to come out and say so. I challenge any agency to come out and say "We will not hire the following actors because we think they are subversive."

Yet they do that every day behind locked doors with secret lists which they are afraid to expose to the ridicule and indignation of free speech. Mr. Schmidt's use of the word "fronter" could stand a little free speech right now.

A "fronter" is anyone who votes or runs against AWARE's hand picked slate of right-wing candidates for election in the AFTRA union. A "fronter" is anyone who disagrees with either Godfrey P. Schmidt or Vincent Hartnett, who supplies much of the nonsense contained in AWARE's bulletins.

Recently, I appeared on Steve Allen's television show arguing against these privately compiled blacklists. On the opposite side were Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Hartnett and appearing on my side was Faye Emerson. After the show was over, Mr. Hartnett approached Miss Emerson and asked her if she had ever been blacklisted. It was an unconcealed attempt at intimidation: either you agree with Hartnett or you get blacklisted. When Miss Emerson said no, Mr. Hartnett said: "How about the PAC (Political Action Committee)?" Miss Emerson said she had never been a member of it. "How about that speech you made before the PAC?" "I never made any speech before the PAC," said Miss Emerson.

Yet AWARE is quite capable of accusing people of speeches they didn't make before organizations they don't belong to. Much of their information they get out of "The Daily Worker" which they consider as sacred as the gospel — a strange thing for people who profess to be anti-Communist. Much of AWARE's Publication 12 came straight out of the "The Daily Worker".

One of the people accused in publication 12 was Kim Stanley, one of the finest young actresses around, now starring in "Bus Stop," on the grounds that she studied at the Actors Studio. Well, so did Marlon Brando and Marilyn Monroe — and many others — but they didn't happen to be running against Mr. Schmidt's right-wing slate of candidates at AFTRA—so there was no point in blackening their reputations.

AWARE shouts that it is organized to "combat the Communist conspiracy in entertainment communications" but it is my fixed conviction, as I said on the Steve Allen show, that neither Mr. Schmidt nor Mr. Hartnett would recognize a Communist if they stumbled over one at high noon in Times Square. The actors seem finally to have recognized it. It's high time both the networks and the agencies and the sponsors did, too — and threw Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Hartnett out.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear brother and son, Carl Shaw, who departed this life 23 years ago today, July 15, 1930.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all.
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died.
To think you could not say goodbye,
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best,
Oh, God grant you eternal rest.
Ross F. Shaw and Family.
Oldtown, Md.

Court Upholds City In Home Rule Case

New Friendly Suit Is Filed

Hardly had Chief Judge George Henderson filed a 20-page opinion yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court holding that the Mayor and Council of Cumberland acted legally in taking steps to delete from the City Charter the previously accepted method of amending the charter, when a second friendly suit was docketed in the same court to settle another point in the home rule controversy.

Opinion

Judge Henderson concluded his lengthy opinion with the observation that the proper method of amending the charter of Cumberland is under the provisions of Chapter 423 of the Acts of 1955, which is generally known as the new Municipal Home Rule Act of the General Assembly.

The opinion, implementing a decree filed Tuesday by the jurist, was in the friendly suit which Owen E. Hitchins, a local resident and taxpayer living on Buckingham Road in The Dingle, had filed against the Mayor and City Council, Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery.

Hitchins' suit questioned the authority of the Mayor and City Council in passing Charter Amendment Resolution No. 1, the purpose of which was to delete from the city charter the present amendment requirements and to lease as the only applicable amendment provisions those which are set out in the new Home Rule Act so that a referendum will not be mandatory on every proposed change in the city charter.

The suit is designed to clarify the law to the end that when the time comes to ussue bonds to pay for the proposed water line to the new plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company there will be no doubt about the legality of the method which will have been used by the city officials in authorizing the necessary bonds.

Voters' Approval Needed

Under statutory home rule as provided in Chapter 702 of the Acts of 1951, amendments to the city charter of Cumberland can be initiated either by the Mayor and City Council or by 10 per cent of the voters, but in either case the proposed amendment must be approved by the voters in a referendum.

Under provisions of the new Municipal Home Rule Act amendments to any city charter are to be initiated by the Mayor and City Council or by 20 per cent of the voters; but if the amendment is initiated by the Mayor and City Council it will become effective after 50 days unless within 40 days a referendum is requested by 20 per cent of the voters.

This implementing legislation was passed as a result of the action last November 2 by the voters of the State of Maryland in approving the Home Rule Amendment to the State Constitution.

Judge Henderson notes in his opinion that the newer method is a quicker and less expensive way of putting through any amendment to the charter which is not opposed by any great number of voters.

The important difference between the new method of charter amendments and the present charter provisions is that the 1955 Home Rule Act does not require a referendum unless petitioned for by 20 per cent of the voters.

Statutory Act Ruled Out

In the course of his opinion, the chief judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit holds that Chapter 702 of the Acts of 1951, the statutory home rule act, was constitutional.

Later in the opinion, Judge Henderson quotes a section from Chapter 423, the new Home Rule Act, which he says does not seem to permit any exception, or even the existence of any alternative amending method.

"Every municipal corporation shall proceed as in this sub-heading (charter amendments) provid-

New Equity Suit

The new equity suit filed yesterday by Owen E. Hitchins, Buckingham Road, The Dingle, against the Mayor and City Council, questions the action of the city officials in passing Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2 Monday of this week.

This resolution undertakes to delete the present sub-section (d) of Section 82 of the city charter, which authorizes the issuance of Water Department bonds by the Mayor and City Council but requires a referendum on any such issue.

The new sub-section (d) enacted by the resolution only requires a referendum in the event that 20 per cent of the duly qualified city voters file a petition for such referendum within 40 days.

Hitchins then alleges that the procedure under which Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2 was passed is invalid on the ground that the procedure established by Chapter 702 of the Acts of 1951 is the only proper procedure under which the city charter can be amended. He further alleges that the resolution should not have been passed pending the final determination by the courts of Maryland of the proper procedure to use in amending the charter.

Judge Henderson's opinion in Hitchins' earlier friendly suit, filed yesterday, ruled that Chapter 702 has been repealed by Chapter 423 of the Acts of 1955, the new Municipal Home Rule Act. Therefore, the proper method of amending the charter is under provisions of Chapter 423.

In another section of his new bill of complaint Hitchins states that passage of Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2 was at least premature.

Hitchins also states in another section that he is entitled to have the Mayor and City Council restrained from proceeding with the publication of this resolution, which will become effective in 50 days after its passage.

Filed with the eight-page bill of complaint by William C. Walsh, attorney for Hitchins, was a four-page answer from the Mayor and City Council filed by City Attorney Thomas B. Finan. In that answer the city officials admit the allegations contained in 13 paragraphs of the bill of complaint but deny the matters and facts contained in three other paragraphs.

The Mayor and Council request the court to declare Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2 presents a valid means of repealing Section 82 (d) of the city charter. Finally the city officials request the court to set a date for hearing on the matters in dispute at which time the parties shall present arguments regarding the constitutionality of the matters set forth in the bill and answer.

Judge Overrules Demurrer In Suit

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris Wednesday issued a verbal opinion from the bench in Allegany County Circuit Court overruling a demurrer concerning a dispute over the proposed removal of the Six Mile House landmark west of Cumberland.

Judge Harris gave Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Mrs. Katherine M. Beveridge, owner of the premises, until August 15 to present additional arguments. Attorney George R. Hughes Jr., represented Frank B. Vandegrift and Mary H. Vandegrift, his wife, now of Kansas City, Kan., who filed the equity suit.

The Cumberland News Thursday incorrectly stated that Judge Harris had sustained the demurrer.

City Is Asked To Build Span At Market St.

Discussion Planned By Mayor And Council

The Corps of Engineers wants to know if the City of Cumberland can advertise for the construction of the new Market Street Bridge at once, Mayor Roy W. Eves announced yesterday.

He said the government is anxious to have the city proceed with the construction of the bridge in connection with the improvements planned for Wills Creek during the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood protection project.

The Mayor said the proposal will be discussed by the Mayor and Council at its meeting Monday morning.

Must Clear Water

A new bridge must be built across Wills Creek at Market Street so the span will not interfere with the flood waters which will come surging down Wills Creek when the swift-channel plan is completed.

Work on the new Valley Street Bridge was completed several months ago at a cost of about a third of a million dollars.

The Market Street Bridge is the second of two spans which the City of Cumberland must build in connection with the $17,000,000 flood control plan. The third will be a new span at Baltimore Street, which has been bridged by over a dozen spans during the past 200 years.

There was no immediate comment from city officials on whether the project could be started at once, and it is understood the decision may depend upon the availability of local funds.

The Corps of Engineers has completed the first of four contracts needed to improve the Wills Creek channel and it is understood that the second contract on the creek channel may be let this year.

Funds Are Voted

Congress on Wednesday passed and sent to the White House a bill which provided $1,400,000 for the local flood control project. Some of this money, it is understood, will go toward the present contract, which will cost about $817,000, which has been awarded to the E. J. Albrecht Company for levees, a flood wall and channel improvement on the Potomac River.

The next contract is slated to be advertised in September, and may be for one of the Wills Creek jobs. Contractors have been advised this will be a Class D contract, which means the cost would range between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000.

At present, the flood protection job is nearly 40 per cent completed. Still to be awarded are the three Wills Creek contracts and two more for Potomac River work.

Plans Are Ready

Plans for the Market Street span have been prepared by the J. E. Greiner Company, Baltimore, and have been approved by the city.

The cost was estimated at about $172,000 when the preliminary plans were prepared last year.

Plans call for a composite steel I-beam bridge without a center span, extending 111 feet from Mechanic Street to the entrance of the Queen City Brewing Company, where it ties in with the bridge across the Western Maryland Railway tracks.

Flood Project Discussed At Ridgeley

Officials of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers met Wednesday night with the Mayor and Council of Ridgeley and the newly-appointed flood control committee of the community to bring them up-to-date with the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control Project.

Rex E. Dexter, resident engineer of the Corps of Engineers cleared up a few points during the discussion. He said that all sanitary sewers, and storm sewers will eventually tie in with the conduit line which was completed some time ago.

The conduit line will go to a pumping station located in the east end of Ridgeley. Also discussed was the problem of stagnant water at a lagoon near the Cumberland Cement and Supply.

Dexter pointed out that the stagnant water would be washed away in the event of high water and would not back up into the community. Mosquitoes seem to be breeding rather heavily in the lagoon, according to Mayor Charles Fryer.

This situation could be cleared up with the use of chemicals and Mayor Fryer was reminded to contact the cement and supply company in an effort to avert the problem.

Mayor Fryer also pointed out that some of the streets were sinking where the conduit line had been constructed. Dexter assured the city officials an inspection would be made.

Ralph Thomas and Mr. McGuckan of the Real Estate section of the Corps of Engineers were also present. Mayor Fryer said future meetings of the flood control committee would be held every second Wednesday of the month at 8:30 p. m. in the Council Chamber.

The public is invited to attend the meetings.

North End Playlot Plans Square Dance

A square dance is being planned on Monday at 8 p. m. by the North End Playground.

Frank White will call the figures. A feature of the evening will be a cake walk. The public is invited to attend.

They are, left to right, Jerry Hammond, who won the senior boys championship for East Side Playground; Mary Lee, of Pine Avenue, who won the girls competition, and John Cross of Centre Street Playground, who won the junior championship. The playoffs were held yesterday afternoon at Constitution Park.

Pharmacists To Convene Next Week

Session Set At Bedford Springs

A group of local and area pharmacists are planning to attend the 73d annual convention of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association scheduled July 18-21 at the Bedford Springs Hotel, in Bedford, Pa.

They are Lester R. Martin, city, president of the association and general manager of Fords Drugstores Inc.; W. Dale Timmons, Arthur N. Spano, Charlton Hanks, Harry C. Lewis, city; M. J. Andrews and C. L. Sandene, Frostburg.

Between 400 and 500 persons are expected to attend the sessions, according to Martin.

The association meeting will be held in conjunction with the Travelers' and Ladies' Auxiliaries. At 1 p. m. Monday, Martin added, registration will be held in the hotel lobby and he will conduct the convention call to order at 2 p. m.

Various reports will be given following an opening address by Martin. Appointment of the Committee on Nominations and Resolutions as well as other announcements will wind up the afternoon business.

A program of entertainment has been arranged for Monday evening. Various speakers will give talks during the sessions and on Thursday afternoon there will be a report of the nominating committee, election of officers and members of the executive committee and an election of a member to the State Board of Pharmacy. A report of the Committee on Resolutions will also be made.

A feature of the convention, Martin added, will be "The All-American Pharmacy Seminar" at 10 a. m. Thursday with the following prominent men taking part:

Dr. Robert L. Swain, awarded one of the highest honors in pharmacy, the Remington Medal, who is editor of Drug Topics and Drug Trade News; H. W. Adkins, member of Industrial Leaders Conference of National Association of Manufacturers, New York City, and former vice president of Gillette Safety Razor Corporation.

Dr. B. R. Mull, director of Special Assignments for Eli Lilly and Company and staff assistant to the vice president; and Dr. Paul C. Olsen, lecturer in Accounting and Marketing at Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, and Rutgers University College of Pharmacy.

Baseball Excursion Planned By YMCA

An excursion to Baltimore on Saturday, July 30, to witness the baseball game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Cleveland Indians of the American League, is being planned by the Central YMCA, according to Lawrence H. Dehn, program secretary.

Reservation blanks are now available for the first 36 boys between the ages of 10 and 16 who wish to make the trip. The price includes a chartered bus transportation to Baltimore and back, entry into the ball park and a seat, individual insurance, and a snack following the game.

Six adult supervisors will accompany the youths.

In addition to the trip, the YMCA is conducting a baseball quiz and contest for those who attend.

Sobeloff Named By President To Succeed Soper

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — President Eisenhower tonight nominated U. S. Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff to be U. S. circuit judge for the Fourth Circuit.

The circuit embraces Maryland and areas of West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Sobeloff would succeed Judge Morris A. Soper, retired. Both Sobeloff and Soper are from Baltimore.

The nomination of Sobeloff, sent to the Senate as Eisenhower made last minute preparations to depart for the Big Four conference in Geneva, is subject to Senate confirmation.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, told newsmen in response to questions that no successor to Sobeloff as solicitor general has been selected yet.

Sobeloff, 62, is a Republican. He has served as solicitor general since February, 1954.

Toll Charge Dropped On Wellersburg Calls

Toll charges for calls to Cumberland and Frostburg have been removed from Wellersburg, Pa., customers, according to C. Walter Haschert, local manager of the C & P Telephone Company of Baltimore City.

He said the action was taken July 9 when the nearby Pennsylvania community was taken into the Cumberland-Frostburg local calling area. Calls from Cumberland and Frostburg to Wellersburg are also toll-free.

Haschert said Cumberland customers will be able to dial directly to the Wellersburg area by dialing DAvenport 4 after the dial system is placed into operation here August 21.

City Garbage Law Will Be Amended

To Delay Bids To Allow Change

City officials agreed informally yesterday to renew the present garbage contract until the city can amend its charter to strike out depression-inspired legislation relating to contracts let for the collection of garbage.

Mayor Roy W. Eves reported, following a meeting in his office yesterday afternoon, that the Mayor and Council will take action on the proposal at its meeting Monday morning.

The meeting was called to reach a decision on garbage collection, resulting from an opinion handed down last week by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris that the advertisement for bids opened April 18 were not legally drawn since prevailing wage scales called for in the city code where not specified.

Has Six Hour Day

Section 155 of the code, passed at a special session in 1953, specifies that in contracts let by the city for garbage removal, six hours shall constitute a work day and 36 hours a work week and that employes shall be paid at the prevailing wage rate.

It points out that if bids are excessive, the city can reject all bids and have the work done directly by the city.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan explained, as the meeting opened, that he has prepared forms and a contract for advertising for bids for the work.

He said the question to be decided was whether to let the contract for one year, with the option to renew for a year, or to delay letting the pact for 60 days or more to allow the Mayor and Council to amend the city charter.

Urges Amendments

He said prevailing rates call for laborers to get $1.50 an hour and drivers $1.70. The city pays $1.40 and $1.47 for corresponding work.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz urged that the charter be amended, so the contract could be let for a five-year period.

During the discussion by Mayor Eves and Commissioners Buchholtz, Edwards and Keegan, it was pointed out the city feels garbage workers should be paid the city wage scale, and that the 36-hour depression provision should be removed since it could penalize the garbage contractor.

Officials said higher bids would probably result if the WPA-type provisions were included in the pact.

It was pointed out that garbage collection here costs about $72,000 a year, and represents about 10 cents on the tax rate.

Some cities in the area, Mayor Eves said, buy gargage collection equipment and let contracts for collection.

Others, it was pointed out, make a separate charge for garbage collection, billing citizens for the service the same as water.

Finan said he felt the city should amend the charter since the Mayor and Council should consider the taxpayers and that if the Council can get the work done for from $10,000 to $12,000 less it should do so.

Three Men Held At Keyser In Rape Of Woman

Cumberland Trio To Get Hearing Today

Three Cumberland men are being held in Mineral County Jail in Keyser, W. Va., on a charge of raping a 34-year-old Hagerstown woman early yesterday morning at Cumberland Airport.

Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin said the trio was being held without bond pending a preliminary hearing today before Justice of the Peace C. J. Phillips in Ridgeley. The three are James W. Fadley, 30, of 1414 River Avenue; James E. Beerman, 30, of 10 Fourth Street; and Daral C. Lambert, 25, of 439 Grand Avenue.

Mrs. Betty Smith told authorities she was forcibly assaulted by the three men sometime after midnight when they took her to the Cumberland Airport after promising her a ride to her sister's home on Laing Avenue where she is visiting.

Mrs. Smith told this story:

Fadley was visiting at her sister's home where she was staying. Sometime after midnight Thursday morning Mrs. Smith wanted some cigarets and started to a nearby restaurant to get them.

Fadley, she said, offered to walk along with her and the two met Lambert in his car as they walked toward the restaurant. Lambert offered them a ride to the restaurant where they also met Beerman.

The four of them had a few drinks and sat around talking until about 2 a. m. when she decided to go home. The three men offered to drive her home but instead drove her across the Wiley Ford bridge into West Virginia, taking her to the airport.

There, she said, they forced their attentions upon her, holding her helpless as they attacked her. She said it was near dawn before they returned her to her sister's home.

Police said the woman was bruised on the legs and arms and a doctor's examination showed she had been molested.

Mrs. Smith reported the incident to Cumberland Police who picked the three men up for questioning. She later swore out a warrant in West Virginia against the trio who were turned over to Cpl. Frank H. Tribett of the West Virginia State Police after they waived extradition before Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Sgt. James Brown, Detective Donald H. Smith and Officer George Pfeiffer of the local police department assisted in the arrests.

Jurors Decide Warnick Still Is Insane

After deliberating about one hour and 15 minutes yesterday afternoon, an Allegany County Circuit Court jury decided that Floyd Warnick, 38, formerly of Westernport, is still insane and must remain an inmate of Spring Grove State Hospital at Catonsville.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the hearing.

Warnick was committed to the hospital after pleading not guilty by reason of insanity in October 1951 to charges of arson and unlawful brush burning. He has been hospitalized since November 1951.

John T. Creegan, foreman of the jury of 10 men and two women, announced the verdict about 4 p. m. Warnick was returned to the hospital immediately.

Attorney Edward J. Ryan, representing Warnick, argued that the former Westernport man now knows the difference between right and wrong and would be able to live a normal life with his parents.

Most of the witnesses in behalf of the hospitalized man were relatives and friends.

Assistant State's Attorney James S. Getty presented medical testimony from twe men who stated that they believed Warnick is now sane and should remain confined in the hospital. They were Dr. Charles Ward, physician and psychiatrist at Spring Grove, and Dr. Manfred Guttmacher, Baltimore, nationally known criminal psychologist.

Dr. Guttmacher acknowledged that Warnick probably would be happier at home than in the hospital but questioned whether he might be safe to mingle in society. He said it is the job of men like him to see that the number of persons released from mental institutions who later commit serious crimes is kept at an "irreducible minimum."
